Elks buy club and golf course

Granite City Elks Lodge 1063 has agreed to purchase Arlington Golf Club, an 18-hole golf course, swimming pool and picnic area located east of Granite City, between Route 152 and State Aid 35.

Avery Schermer, president of the Golfside Development Corporation which built and has operated the Arlington Golf Club since 1961, announced today the sale of the corporate stock to the Granite City Elks Lodge.

The amount of money involved for the approximate 192 acres of land is not being disclosed at the present time.

It is expected the transfer of ownership will take place May 1, Schermer said.

Harold Rush, Elks Lodge 1063 exalted ruler, told the Press-

Record the purchase was authorized by a unanimous vote of Elks' members at a meeting Tuesday night.

"It was one of the biggest turnouts (at a club meeting) in a long time," Rush commented.

It was learned about 140 members attended the meeting and gave their unanimous approval to the acquisition of the Arlington site.

The purchase of the golf club will not affect the downtown location of the Elks lodge headquarters, 1329

Niedringhaus Ave., "Everything will remain as it is—at least for the time being," Rush stated.

Rush said the funds to make the purchase have been raised

Drowns in river

The U.S. Coast Guard and Madison County sheriff's department resumed search efforts this morning to attempt to locate a Kirkwood, Mo., man who disappeared when a boat overturned in the Mississippi River near the southern tip of Gabaret Island, near the Granite City locks yesterday morning.

Three of the four persons in the 18-foot jon boat swam to shore, but Samuel Clark, 52, was last seen floating in the choppy river. His companions believe he was wearing a life preserver.

Herbert Harris, 49, St. Louis, and Charles Jackson, 58, Kirkwood, clung to the overturned boat until it came near the shoreline and they then swam to shore.

Elmo Pace, 48, Kirkwood, floated down stream one-half mile after the boat overturned and then managed to get to shore. Pace was the last to see Clark.

Boy, 6, hit by car and hurt critically

Six-year-old Thomas Moylan, 2033 Madison Ave., was in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Cardinal Glennon Hospital, St. Louis, today after being struck by an auto in a school crossing at 3:10 p.m. Wednesday.

The driver of the auto which struck him, Carl Cooper, Fairmont City, was charged with driving too fast for conditions. Crossing guard Walter Gasparovic, 2252 Adams St., said he was holding out a school "stop" sign and walked to the middle of Madison Avenue, but had not told anyone to cross. Traffic stopped in three lanes.

but the outside northbound lane was open.

Witnesses said the Moylan boy and another boy were playing on the sidewalk and the Moylan boy turned suddenly and went into the crosswalk just as Cooper's auto approached in the outside northbound lane.

The impact threw the boy about 57 feet before he stopped in the street, police reported. Cooper's auto skidded about 25 feet after impact, police said.

The boy was taken unconscious by Granite City ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital where he was examined for a large hematoma to the back of his neck and other injuries. He was transferred to Cardinal Glennon Hospital.

May change local federal court district

Senator Charles H. Percy (R-Ill.) and Senator Adlai E. Stevenson (D-Ill.) have jointly introduced legislation to change boundaries of the federal court system to the people of Illinois," Stevenson said.

Under the existing federal court districts in Illinois, the Northern (Chicago) District is served by 13 judges, the Southern (Springfield) District by two judges and the Eastern (East St. Louis) District by two judges.

Percy and Stevenson have proposed under their federal court district realignment that the Northern District would be convenient and geographically accurate division of the state, and improve the service and accessibility of the federal court system to the people of Illinois," Stevenson said.

Mrs. Estes hurt in crash

Mrs. Elaine Estes (Bone), 43, of 5445 Maryville Road, the wife of Madison County Sheriff's Deputy James Estes, was injured seriously when her auto and a tractor-trailer were involved in an accident at Route 203 and Maryville Road at 7:15 a.m. yesterday.

Ronald Schemonia, 23, Murphysboro, the driver of the tractor-trailer, was charged with disobeying a traffic control light after his southbound truck allegedly went through the red light and struck the left side of Mrs. Estes' eastbound car.

Mrs. Estes was pinned in the car and a rescue unit from the Granite City Fire Department had to use the "jaws of life" tool to break the driver's door off and free her legs from under the steering wheel. She was unconscious for a time at the scene, authorities said.

She was taken by Granite City ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital where examination indicated the possibility of a fractured hip, a ruptured spleen, head injury, internal bleeding and other injuries.

She was transferred to St. Elizabeth Hospital, St. Louis, and was reported in satisfactory condition today.

Women terrorized

A man posing as an Illinois Power Co. repairman terrorized two women in their Granite City home at 5:45 p.m. Monday. He left without taking anything, after seeking cash and valuables.

The intruder had no connection with the electricity and gas utility. He was believed to be between 23 and 26 years old. The brutal nature of the occurrence has sparked an intense investigation. Victims were a 30-year-old Pontoon Road woman and her 65-year-old daughter, who resides with her.

The mother received a telephone call at about 5:30 p.m.

Monday from a man who said he was with the power company and would like to visit the home to check electrical meters for safety, due to recent storms.

An Illinois Power spokesman said yesterday all actual employees have appropriate identification cards.

"If there is the slightest doubt in residents' minds about a worker, they should call their local Illinois Power office to verify that the individual does represent us," the spokesman commented.

The 30-year-old woman agreed to allow the caller to check meters, and about 15 minutes later he knocked on the front door and said he was ready to look at the meters.

She told him to go to the back door and she would let him in. He complied, and she allowed him to enter the home.

The man turned several lights on and off and said he had to go into the basement, asking her to accompany him and he went to the basement alone, returning upstairs moments later to ask if she had any fuses. She said she did not, and he again asked her to accompany him to the basement.

Again she declined, and asked why the man was working after

'New look' for First Assembly

By MICK STRANGE

"Project 78" is the name for the new look now being given the First Assembly of God Church, 24th Street and Madison Avenue, it was announced today by the Rev. C. Dale Edwards, pastor.

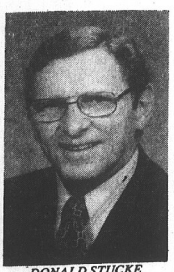

What has been the back of the church building is taking on a new look and will become, in effect, the front, adding to the general view of the area, Rev. Edwards said.

A colonial style portico with a balcony is being added. In addition to new styling on the building, the balcony will be used for special services outside at Christmas, Easter and on other special occasions.

A 37-foot tower is being constructed in the south end of the parking lot which will have chimneys and a speaker system, allowing services to be held on the balcony and permitting persons to stay in their car for worship.

Stucke heads board

DONALD STUCKE

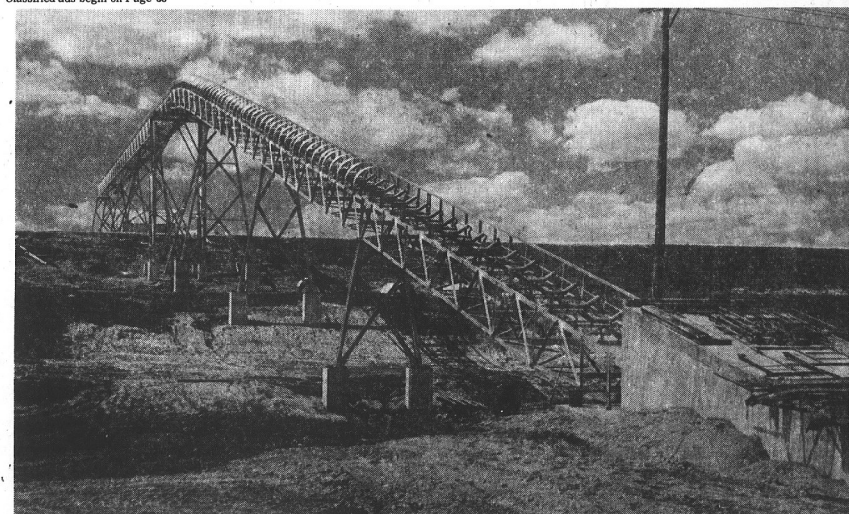

By DONNA HARTWICK
Press-Record Staff Writer
In a reorganization meeting Tuesday night the Granite City Board of Education elected Donald Stucke as board president, and voted to keep Stallings School open with one dissenting vote against the proposal of continued use of the school.

Stucke succeeds Thomas Mioday who served two terms as president of the board. George E. Moore Sr. and Stephen Saltch were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

The board also reappointed William Schooley as school attorney and agreed to keep the secretary's salary at $300 per year.

Preceding the reorganization, board members discussed the annual reports on a public hearing on phasing out Stallings School. A delegation of 25 interested residents attended the meeting. Monroe Worthen made a motion to retain use of Stallings School and added, "I think the school should be kept in operation with the thought that the children should not be transferred to another school, since they have experienced several transfers in the past. Also, Granite City Steel has purchased the former General Steel Industries, and there is a possibility that more employment will be brought into the community with new families needing housing. They

Question jail security for convict escapees

Dennis B. Kirksey, one of two convicted murderers being held in the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville, slashed his left forearm with a razor blade Monday in his cell.

Kirksey and Raymond C. Milenz are being held awaiting trial in connection with the Dec. 22 death of Mary Ann Crest of Godfrey when their auto, which was driven by Kirksey, struck Mrs. Crest's auto near Alton during a police chase. They had escaped from Missouri state prison guards prior to the chase.

Each has a history of escape from authorities and jails, causing concern about housing them in the 10-year-old Madison County Jail. Kirksey's apparent suicide attempt heightened fears the duo cannot be properly supervised in the facility.

It is believed a guard gave three safety razors to prisoners in the main cellblock to shave and did not get all three back. One was passed by prisoners "hand to hand" and into Kirksey's cellblock where he broke the specially-made jail razor and removed the razor blade to cut himself.

The jail razors are supposed to require a key to open, and change blades, but Kirksey apparently used force to snap the casing open.

Kirksey told a guard when he was taken to Oliver C. Anderson Hospital in Maryville, "This is what I have to do in order to go to the hospital for my kidney."

He had complained of stomach pains for several days, but was examined by the jail doctor who said he did not require hospital treatment and who ordered medication.

Eight stitches were used to close the wound and Kirksey was returned to the county jail.

Sgt. Robert Hertz, public information officer for the sheriff's department, said he is concerned about security for the two, particularly when they are tried for Mrs. Crest's death.

He said the twice-daily walks from the jail to the County Courthouse when they will be surrounded by people, and the time they spend in the courthouse during the trial are a major concern, more so than their security inside the jail.

Milenz Monday asked for a change of venue and judge in the case and Circuit Judge Joseph Barr has continued a hearing on the motion for about a week.

After disposition of that motion, the trial of both can begin.

Kirksey already has been convicted of murdering a St. Louis security guard during a 1973 robbery and Milenz was convicted of second-degree murder in connection with the 1974 deaths of a Lemay, Mo., couple during an auto accident which ended another high-speed police chase.

Both cut their forearms in the Springfield, Ill., city jail in Solar hot dogs taste great, pupils discover

A group of Marshall Grade School pupils have come up with one answer to the continuing energy shortage — specifically in an area of vital importance to youngsters — by constructing their own solar hot dog cookers.

The students, under the guidance of Ron Keaton, Resource teacher, and Mary Lou Schwab, Learning Center teacher, completed their unit of study on solar energy last week.

As part of the study program, the children constructed their own solar hot dog cookers, using cardboard sheets covered with mylar, a heavy foil-like material.

The cookers utilized a collection of the sun's energy as fuel.

The hot dogs were then suspended on wire between two angled stakes, directly in front of the mylar-covered cardboard sheets, which were placed in an upright position against a sunny wall.

Cooking time for the hot dogs was about 20 minutes. The time actually depends on how precisely each cooker is constructed, the teachers noted.

The same students will participate in an experimental helium balloon project sometime in May, it was learned.

SOLAR HOT DOGS prove just as delectable to eat as if cooked the conventional way. Michael Prince, left, and Buffy Millsap are about to discover. Here, the Marshall School second grade pupils are waiting for their hot dogs to finish cooking, about 20 minutes, using solar energy produced from mylar covered cardboard sheets.

Evening campaign style by Thompson

By AL MANNING
Press-Record
Springfield Bureau

Gov. James Thompson has developed a habit of campaigning after 6 p.m., which he could use later in a bid for the Republican nomination for president.

In the weeks before the March primary, Thompson often traveled around the state after finishing his day's work in Springfield.

A brief review of his schedule in the two months before the primary shows he made at least eight political trips in the evening after working in the Capitol.

On Jan. 24, for example, he flew to Moline to campaign for State Rep. Ben Polk, R-Moline. He made four such trips in February. On Feb. 2 he flew to Fort for Rep. Jane Barnes, R-Oak Lawn, and the next night he attended a Citizens for Thompson fund-raiser in Peoria.

On Feb. 9 he flew to Mattoon for an event for Rep. Jim Edgar, R-Mattoon, and Feb. 23 he went to Homewood for Rep. William Mahar, R-Homewood.

In March he traveled to East Alton for a Madison County GOP fund-raiser; to Morris for a party for Pete Remmert, a candidate for the state committee; and to Galesburg for a Knox County GOP function.

The governor did the same thing after working in the Chicago office on at least four occasions. In addition, he went to some weekend rallies. He also traveled frequently to Washington, D.C., for political as well as governmental purposes.

These trips in Illinois help local candidates and the Republican Party, as well as further his own re-election bid. Some persons think this same style can be used next year if the governor wins re-election and becomes a presidential candidate.

The distance he travels would be further than is currently the case, but the air time would not be prohibitive in many instances.

At a recent seminar at the University of Illinois, David Broder, a political columnist for the Washington Post, suggested Thompson would have the time to campaign for the nomination.

"He could do his job through the day," Broder said, "then fly off in the evening. He could stay and shake every hand (at the rally) and return that night."

He would be very formidable.

Some observers of Illinois government think Thompson does not put in enough time on his job as it is, however.

Former Gov. Dan Walker, for one, is a sharp critic of Thompson on this matter. Some persons, even those who dislike Walker, tend to agree with him on this point.

They think Thompson places too much emphasis on trivial items such as racquetball and his dogs.

Broder's opinion is respected, though, and should not be taken lightly.

At the same seminar, Hal Bruno of Newsweek and Jack Germond of the Washington Star were asked why Thompson is considered a hot prospect for the nomination.

Bruno said the governor of any large state such as Illinois is automatically considered a potential candidate.

"Thompson won big," Bruno said. "Physically, he's big, and he impresses people. He does not insult our intelligence when he comes to Washington, and the Republicans need a live candidate."

The biggest drawback to a Thompson candidacy, Bruno suggested, was the fact he has no conservative credentials.

"I'm not sure Thompson is not overrated," Germond said. "He's done nothing but keep out of trouble."

"His position is similar to (Nelson) Rockefeller's — he's too moderate. And he can't do everything after 6 o'clock."

"If President Carter is in trouble (in 1980), the people will not want somebody else who does not know much about Washington."

Births in county show 10% decline

A total of 258 births in Madison County during March — 134 boys and 124 girls — dropped 10.7 percent below the 289 births reported during the same month a year ago, according to a vital statistics report released by County Clerk Evelyn Bowles. In March 1977 births included 151 boys and 138 girls.

The report said one set of twins was born last month, compared with two sets in March 1977.

Last month's total of 177 deaths in the county was identical to the same as in March 1977, according to the report.

Marriages during March totaled 169, a decline from 214, or 21 percent, from March 1977.

Greene County site picked by Ill. Power

Illinois Power Company announced Wednesday in Decatur that it is acquiring land in Greene County, near the Illinois River, as a site for an electric generating station to help meet the needs of the IP system in the 1990s.

James O. McLeod, vice president of the company, said the site, which would encompass about 1,800 acres two miles southeast of Hillview, is needed to provide Illinois Power with flexibility in siting power plants many years into the future.

McLeod said no determination of the type or size of plant which might be constructed on the site has been made, nor has any construction date been set.

Doane Lanco, Inc., of St. Louis has been acting as a purchasing agent for the company in acquiring land. About one-third of the required acreage has been negotiated.

Illinois Power recently announced plans to enlarge its Vermilion station west of Danville sometime in the 1980s. It has announced that the new unit being considered in that expansion will be coal-fired.

A new 450,000-kilowatt coal-fired unit at the company's Havana station is nearing completion and will be in service this spring.

East of Clinton, IP is constructing a nuclear-powered generating station, with the first 850,000-kilowatt unit scheduled for service in the early 1990s.

"The Hillview site fits into our longer-range planning for the company," McLeod said.

Trial June 26 for ex-officers

Revise two bus routes

A trial date is set for June 26 in Alton on federal racketeering and perjury charges against Madison Alderman Ronald Grzywacz, former Madison officer Edward Godan and suspended police sergeant Richard Krieschok, Federal Prosecutor Gerald Fines announced Wednesday.

Attorneys for the three appeared in Springfield for arraignment Monday and entered innocent pleas on all charges. The court continued the $20,000 recognizance bonds for each.

The three are charged with conspiring to accept money and favors from taverns and businesses to allow prostitution, late closing hours and other illegal activities from January, 1971 to July, 1974, and with lying to a federal grand jury investigating the allegations.

The routes of the Bi-State Development Agency's McKinley Bridge and Pontoon Road Express bus lines will be altered slightly in the area around Pontoon Road beginning Monday, April 17, at the request of local officials, a spokesman said.

McKinley Bridge buses operating from St. Louis will follow the present route to Ferguson and Wabash, turn right on Wabash and left on Pontoon to the Gaillard Walk area and shopping center. Returning to St. Louis, the buses will reverse this routing.

On the Pontoon Express line, buses operating to St. Louis in the morning will follow the regular route to Ferguson and Wabash, turn right on Wabash to Pontoon, left on Pontoon to Johnson Road and right on Johnson, resuming the present route to downtown St. Louis. In the evening, outbound buses will reverse this route.

As a result of these changes, bus service via Woodlawn and Maryville will be discontinued. For further information Quad-Cityans may call Bi-State toll-free at 879-4144.

A vote will be held April 23 on whether to authorize a strike by the 11,000-member Machinists' union at the McDonnell Douglas Corp. plant.

through pledges in a drive that began last November. He pointed out there will be no changes in personnel at Arlington, or in operation of the golf course.

"Everything will remain just as it is, at least for the rest of this year," Rush repeated.

Schermer also emphasized there will be no changes at the golf club, as far as the 1978 season is concerned.

"All memberships, fees, etc. will remain as announced for this year. Should any changes occur in 1979, they will be announced by the Elks," he stressed.

The Elks have been negotiating with the Goldside Corp. on the purchase for about five months, Schermer said. There are six other stockholders in the corporation beside Schermer, who has served as the only president since the course was established.

Schermer said the golf course was built by a group of local businessmen to "fill a need. Locally, there wasn't any golf course available to our local people."

"We believe we have filled that need and now we are turning over the stewardship to the Elks," Schermer said.

"We have every confidence the Elks will continue and even improve on the start that we have made."

"We are turning over to them (Elks) an outstanding course in every respect."

"Dean Johnson, the current pro (professional golfer) and course manager, will remain for the balance of the year," Schermer said, adding that he hopes the Elks will place as much confidence in him as the current board of directors.

"Johnson has done an outstanding job for the club ... the course and for the stockholders," he said.

The 192-acre parcel of land includes the 165-acre golf course and 30 unimproved acres, available for future expansion.

It was learned long range plans of the Elks, discussed informally on earlier occasions, may eventually include construction of a new clubhouse at Arlington with extensive dining room facilities and similar improvements.

Schermer, a member of Elks Lodge 1063, said he assured the committee representing the Elks in the negotiations that "if called upon I would be willing to serve the Elks in any capacity they see fit."

Clark, and reported he was floating and appeared alive. The three said they put their boat in the water near the Gateway Arch about 9:30 a.m. to go fishing and were almost across the river when they decided to turn back because of rough water and wind.

They turned the boat around, but one wave tipped the boat in one direction and another wave came from another direction and swamped the craft, throwing all four out.

One wore a wristwatch which stopped at 10:10 a.m., about the time the boat was swamped. Those who got to shore walked to Locks 27 and alerted authorities who called the sheriff's department and the Coast Guard.

Search efforts continued through 6:30 p.m. yesterday when they were halted by darkness, but the search resumed this morning and was expected to continue all day, unless Clark is found.

judge to serve the district's western division.

The action could address the concerns of many Illinois residents who do not believe they receive adequate federal judicial service, they added.

The Percy-Stevenson proposal includes recommendations made by the Committee to Study Federal Judicial Districts in Illinois, a group formed in 1975 after Sen. Percy called for a review of federal court administration in the state.

The committee was chaired by John R. Mackay of Wheaton, a former president of the Illinois State Bar Association.

The committee conducted public hearings in Chicago, Rockford, Peoria, Campaign, Urbana and East St. Louis. The committee heard testimony from 44 witnesses and said it amassed hundreds of pages of exhibits.

The committee's recommendations, which were issued in April 1976, were circulated for review and comment to all Illinois federal judges, United States attorneys, federal marshals, members of the Illinois Congressional delegation and certain other persons affected by the recommendations.

The Committee to Study Federal Judicial Districts in Illinois had as vice-chairman Arthur T. Lennon of Joliet.

Members were William F. Costigan, Bloomington; John M. Ferguson, Belleville; Sander Koren, East St. Louis; Robert S. Hill, Benton; Duane J. Long, East Moline; Robert D. McKelney, Karakakee; Bradner C. Riggs, Rockford; Raymond L. Teigel, Springfield; Robert L. Tucker, Chicago; Elmer Michael Walsh Jr., Chicago; and Kevin M. Ford, Chicago.

Administrative assistants to the committee were Howard H. Braveman, associate executive director and general counsel of the Illinois State Bar Association; Wiley W. The woman called out to her daughter to contact the police. As the daughter approached the telephone, the man knocked her down and pulled the phone wire from the wall.

He next began slapping and hitting the two women, saying, "Keep your mouth shut and you won't get hurt."

The intruder took a roll of tape from a pocket and taped the mother's mouth closed. She struggled, ripping the man's shirt, and her glasses were broken during the altercation.

The man then threw her into a bathroom and ran out the front door. She went to a neighbor's home and telephoned the police, who began an immediate investigation and search for the man.

Gypsies in area; may be dangerous, police say

Granite City police are warning Quad-City area residents that at least one group of gypsies are operating in this area and should be considered dangerous, due to several attempts to lure elderly persons into their basements.

Two incidents were reported this week which have caused police to attempt to locate a gypsy camp in this area and they have discovered that a group of gypsies was in Granite City at least through noon yesterday, but their present location was unknown this morning.

The men have been offering to spray seal driveways and roofs, usually asking only a small amount of money, but later saying the victim had misunderstood the price and demanding several hundred dollars.

In two recent cases, including one this week, men posed as representatives of Illinois Power Co. and the East St. Louis and Interurban Water Co. to gain entry to the homes of elderly persons.

Two women in one home were struck and one had her mouth taped shut. The man attempted to lure one elderly woman into the basement twice while in the house.

"It is frightening when you think this is how the Kube couple was killed - found in their basement, tied and murdered," Capt. Robert Astorin, chief of the Granite City detectives, commented this morning. Richard and Anna Kube were brutally murdered in their home March 4, 1976, and the murder remains unsolved.

He also noted that many of the elderly victims of recent assaults and murders have had German last names, such as the Kube couple and an Edwardsville couple murdered in their homes.

The gypsies make their living primarily by offering to work around homes, spraying sealer on driveways, roofs and in basements.

One woman reported this week that a man offered to spray her driveway for $8, but she declined. She then called police, but the man was gone when police arrived.

The case reminded officers of incidents last year. One elderly woman agreed to allow her gravel driveway to be sprayed with tar for $8. After the work was done, the worker said the price was $8 per gallon and she had used an entire 16-gallon drum. She paid him $440 and later had to put sand on the driveway gravel, because it was "a mess," officers were told.

Another victim paid $260 for the same work last year. One offer to spray and waterproof a roof for $90 last year resulted in a demand for $400, but the man settled for less.

"It is important for local residents to know that these people are operating around here and what they do. The basic rule is, 'Don't let anyone in your house unless you know who he or she is.' If they say they are from the power company and seem suspicious, call the power company or the police before letting them in."

"If they say they are from the water company or any other company, the same rule applies. If they are legitimate, they will not mind waiting while you check. Do not leave your doors open while you check. Tell them you want to check with someone and lock the door while you check," Capt. Astorin warned.

"The police do not mind checking these things. As a matter of fact, we would welcome calls to investigate suspicious persons and such a call may lead to us clearing some recent crimes, possibly even the Kube death.

"Residents also should be warned against allowing anyone to work on their homes, driveways, roofs or basements, without first checking to see if the person is legitimate. The police will be glad to help determine if anyone offering to work at your home is legitimate. Just give us a call," he added.

He requested anyone who saw a pickup truck with suspicious persons in it, particularly one with oil drums in the back, to call police at 877-6111 and give officers a description of the truck and where it was parked.

An Illinois Power Co. spokesman said yesterday that the company will welcome inquiries about the work being done by any of their employees. All IP employees carry identification cards and will gladly show the cards, if asked, he added.

Joseph Reeves dies at 61

Joseph Warren Reeves, 61, of 2020 Washington Ave., a lifelong resident of Granite City, died at 10:18 p.m. Wednesday, at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

He had been ill two years and hospitalized for three days.

Mr. Reeves was employed at Granite City Steel for 20 years as a stocker.

Survivors include four sons, Ronald, Kenneth, Gary and Marvin Reeves; two daughters, Mrs. Audrey Bellowich and Miss Marilyn Reeves, all of Granite City; three sisters, Mrs. Edward (Florence) Tankley and Mrs. Anna Mae Murphy, both of Granite City, and Ruth Reeves of Hardin, Ill.; a brother, Virgil Reeves, Granite City; and seven grandchildren. Funeral arrangements are given in the obituary column.

Robert Dixon, 28, of 2224 Grand Ave., was admitted to St. Elizabeth Hospital for a gunshot wound to the right shoulder Wednesday night.

Driver shot in shoulder

Dixon told authorities he was driving his car, heard someone call, stopped the car, backed up and then felt pain in his shoulder.

John Cone, 20, of the same address, a passenger in the Dixon auto, was treated and released after treatment of an abrasion to the right side of his neck and right arm, caused by flying glass.

The incident took place at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the 200 block of Madison Avenue.

A bullet believed to be .38 caliber entered the right rear window on Dixon's auto, shattering the window and entering the driver's shoulder.

Cone and his wife, Debbie, were passengers in the front seat.

Police have questioned several persons in the incident.

Roberts out as highway official

The Venice Township Board of Trustees on Tuesday accepted the resignation of Joe Willie Roberts, highway commissioner of Venice Township, which became effective March 31.

The township trustees have disagreed with procedures by the former road commissioner, including purchasing of gasoline, exceeding the budget for employees, rental of road equipment, hiring practices and issuance of payroll checks.

A trustee said he will discuss the topic further at the next meeting of the town board, scheduled for Wednesday, April 26, including a request for a federal review of the road commissioner office structure.

The trustees appointed Ronald Taylor, 100 Booker St., Eagle Park Acres, as road commissioner, pro-tem, until May 1.

A discussion was held on the length of time Taylor could be appointed for, and Attorney Nick D. Vassilef was asked to research the issue and make a report as soon as possible to the board.

In Roberts' letter of resignation to Christ Pashoff, supervisor of Venice Township, Roberts states, "Because of ill health and sickness, I will have to resign my elective office as highway commissioner of Venice Township."

"I enjoyed serving the citizens of the township and feel that I have acquitted myself well as highway commissioner. I will be glad to assist my successor in whatever way that I can."

"My resignation is to be effective March 31, 1978." The letter was signed Joe W. Roberts and carried a heading date of Nov. 29, 1977.

Pashoff said, "Roberts wanted to work until the end of the fiscal year."

"He felt he just was not in good enough health to serve out his entire term, which does not expire until 1981."

Plan poster contest for Shrine circus parade

The Granite City Circus Parade committee of Ainal Temple Shrine will sponsor an art contest for pupils in kindergarten through the eighth grade in all Granite City elementary schools. It was announced Wednesday by Kelly Hogan, chairman of the committee.

Prizes will be awarded for the best posters in each of three groups. Group one will include pupils in kindergarten through the third grade; group two, pupils of the fourth through sixth grades and group three, pupils of the seventh and eighth grades.

Each school will hold preliminary judging and send the first, second and third best posters to each group level to the final judging.

The posters are to feature a circus theme on 22 by 28-inch poster board and may depict whatever the young artist envisions about a circus.

Notices were sent this week to the schools, including rules of the contest. The parade committee will pick up the posters at each school. Final judging will be by the circus committee and two persons selected by Eugene Alassi, Granite City School District art consultant, and will be based on neatness and creativity of the circus theme.

Trophies are to be awarded for first, second and third place in the final judging.

Dr. E. L. Strotheide, whose offices are located at 3412 Nameoki Road, accepted an invitation to present a paper before a Clinical Study group in Moscow, while on a tour of the Soviet Union.

Stolen Jeep is found damaged

The Jeep of Robert W. Gunn Jr., St. Louis, stolen from that city March 31, was found Monday, abandoned at the Pontoon Plaza apartments in the 4000 block of Sara Street. The doors had been cut off, the hard top removed and the ignition lock had been damaged.

Apartment residents said that about two weeks earlier, in the early morning hours, a man parked the Jeep and left in an old white car with loud mufflers.

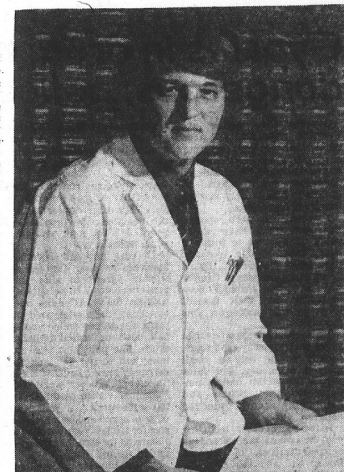

Dr. Strotheide stressed a particular interest in the dietary habits of these osteopaths and indicated his intention to spend as much time as possible researching this phenomenon while in the Caucasus.

He also is a member of the Illinois Chiropractic Society and the American Chiropractic Association.

Dr. Strotheide has been active in many Quad-City area civic clubs and organizations over the years, including the American Red Cross, Toastmasters, Madison and Granite City Rotary clubs, Boy Scouts of America and the Granite City Jaycees.

Dr. Strotheide was accompanied to the USSR by his wife, Connie. He is expected to return home this week after being in the Soviet Union for nearly three weeks.

Dr. Van Merica, president of the Foundation for Accredited Chiropractic Education, American Chiropractic Association, is serving as chairman of the tour study program.

DR. E. L. STROTIDE, who is returning this week from the Soviet Union after presenting a paper before a clinical study group in Moscow and touring health care facilities in the Caucasus, where natural healing methods employed by Soviet physicians were demonstrated. Records show an unusually high number of people over the age of 100 live in the Caucasus region of the USSR.

The event is to be attended by members of local posts of the American Legion within the Madison-Bond and St. Clair-Monroe Counties Council areas. It will be preceded by a 5:30 social hour.

Anyone who can ride a bike, including individuals and groups, is eligible to enter. Riders obtain sponsors, who pledge a certain amount for every mile completed in the bike-a-thon. Volunteer arbiters to help consumers

By JEFF TREWHITT

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois attorney general's Consumer Protection Division is expanding its services with plans for informal arbitration in cases where communication breakdown is the primary problem.

Training for volunteer arbiters has started and the service should be available within four to six weeks.

Tim Bonansinga, Consumer Protection chief, said the program will be offered where investigators feel they have no grounds for fraud prosecution, but where the consumers feel cheated.

Consumers and businessmen will be asked if they are willing to submit their disputes to arbitration in an informal hearing. If they agree, they will be asked to sign documents that say they will accept the decision of the arbitrator.

They also will be given a list of five potential arbitrators that will include background about each candidate. Each party to a dispute will be asked to rank the potential arbitrator according to preference.

Bonansinga said efforts will be made to choose an arbitrator "who most closely matches the top preference of both sides."

The arbitrators will be given documents and files pertaining to the case to study before deciding how to proceed. Their options are flexible and include the right to conduct one or more hearings or to settle the problem by telephone.

"He may or may not make an on-site inspection or seek the help of a technical expert," Bonansinga said. "If circumstances permit, an award may be rendered immediately at the end of the hearing, but we plan on handing them down using 10 days as guideline. We want it to be as quick as possible."

Four workmanship, advertising misrepresentation, faulty construction and auto repair allegations probably will be complaints submitted for arbitration, he added.

Training will be conducted in four sessions during which each arbitrator will be scrutinized carefully.

"We intend to go through all of our rules, the use of all of our forms and do some role playing," said Bonansinga.

"We will satisfy ourselves that each volunteer is competent for the program. I want to make clear that the people who have volunteered so far are highly qualified individuals from many walks of life."

The list includes 37 volunteers, all of whom are professionals in such fields as law, business, education, communications, architecture and government.

SMOKE IN HOUSE

A pan of grease on the stove overheated at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday at the home of Debbie Earhart, 2500 Washington Ave., filling the house with smoke. A brief fire was out by the time firemen arrived. Damage from the smoke was estimated at $50. Firemen were on the scene 10 minutes.

Retailers open season, plan training programs

"It's not luck that makes things happen. One must have long and short term goals and make commitments to oneself. Know where you are going and what you are doing at all times," Don Bryant, a sales motivation consultant told members of the Associated Retailers and Civic Association Monday evening.

The dinner session was the first meeting of the Associated Retailers in 1978.

"This also is the first in a series of solid educational programs designed to meet the needs of employers and employees of local firms," Harley Davis, president, told those gathered at Charlie's Restaurant.

He expressed appreciation to those attending and introduced Burel Schmeisser, retailers vice-president and chairman of the Education Committee.

Schmeisser said, "Retailing is alive and well in the Quad-City area. We welcome all the new stores they are opening and diversity to the local economy."

"This committee has set goals to provide to the businessman and merchants the best motivational and training programs which are available," Schmeisser continued.

He added a special program for employees, sponsored by the Associated Retailers in conjunction with the Illinois Retail Merchants Association, will take place in May.

New officers of the Retailers Association were introduced by Harley Davis, executive vice-president of First Granite City National Bank.

They include: Schmeisser of the National School of Music; Anthony Zedolek, Granite City Trust and Savings Bank, vice president; Credit Bureau, and Herman Schroeder, Granite City Realty Gallery of Homes, secretary-treasurer.

Don Bryant of Godfrey, a widely known sales motivation consultant, was the guest speaker. He has been associated with the real estate business for 17 years, established his own company in 1966 and now has offices in Godfrey, Belleville and Bethalto.

Train in resuscitation

Twenty-two people participated Monday evening in a CPR (cardio-pulmonary resuscitation) class which was sponsored by the PTA unit of Lake School.

Rooms ransacked at North High

Burglars forced their way into six math classrooms at Granite City High School North and stole 17 calculators, school officials reported Tuesday.

Entry was gained by prying the glass from a hallway door which faces the gymnasium. Ceiling tiles in the hallway were removed and a hole was broken in the wall above the ceiling and a classroom door to gain entry to a crawlspace over the classrooms.

New punishment for prisoners in Illinois

By JOAN MURARO

SPRINGFIELD — Inmates serving time in Illinois prisons now face uniform maximum standards for punishment they can receive for violation of various institutional rules.

Most get a maximum of 15 days in segregation, 90 days in C grade, and loss of one month's good time credits.

However, maximums of one year in C grade, 12 months in segregation and loss of 12 months' good time credit are provided for four offenses, including assaulting another inmate or an employee, taking part in a mutinous act or riot, engaging with others in or pressuring others to engage in any unnatural sexual activity, and gathering around an employee in a threatening or intimidating manner.

Charles Rowe, corrections director, said the last regulation covers situations "where you have two or three officers on the yard guarding 500 prisoners, and they suddenly all start moving toward you; you've got a building riot situation, and we don't like that."

Smoking in unauthorized areas carries a possible maximum time of seven days in segregation, a maximum of 30 days at C grade and no loss of good time. Tattooing the body or piercing the ears carries possible maximums of 90 days in C grade, a month's loss of good time, and seven days in segregation.

The decision to apply any or all of the possible punishments is made by an adjustment committee for major offenses and a program unit for minor infractions.

The adjustment committee is made up of three members appointed on a rotating basis by the chief administrative officer, selected from among specified institution personnel.

A program unit is made up of captains, lieutenants, casework supervisors or counselors, all on a rotating basis.

Frank L. Flanagan, chairman of the Citizens for Steele Committee, has announced that Lieutenant Governor Dave O'Neal will attend a fund-raising reception for Rep. Everett C. Steele at the Edwards-Sullivan Inn on Sunday, April 23.

Gov. O'Neal serves as the number one spokesman for Governor Thompson, and was elected in 1976 by a majority of 1,380,137.

In 1975, O'Neal was named the outstanding young Republican in the United States. As lieutenant governor, O'Neal has created a Senior Citizens Legislative Forum, composed of representatives of senior citizen organizations throughout the state, which has given the elderly an opportunity to mount a united front for writing legislation on senior citizen problems.

He heads various commissions at the request of the governor, and serves in the role of ombudsman for the people of Illinois.

The reception will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. April 23, and music and refreshments will be provided. The public will be welcome, and short introductions will be made at approximately 4 p.m. Tickets may be obtained by calling 876-0252 and also will be available at the door, Flanagan said.

NEW APPEARANCE of the First Assembly of God Church as it will look after completion of "Project 78." Plans for expansion of the facilities were announced today. This sketch is looking north from near Madison Avenue in the 2300 block. The church extends from Grand Avenue in the background and will have a new "front entrance" to Madison Avenue, facing that street across the parking lot in the foreground of the drawing.

Twenty-fourth Street extends from the right central portion northwestward toward the upper left. Not shown is the church's Koinonia Center, located at 24th Street and Madison Avenue. The dove is the symbol of the church, and the new bell tower will provide chimes and a loudspeaker system that could be used for outdoor events.

More visiting state's parks

By JOAN MURARO

SPRINGFIELD — Annual attendance at Illinois' state parks went up by about five million visitors in the five-year period ended in 1977, the state Conservation Department says.

Chuck Tamminga, associate director of the department, said recently compiled figures show that 25,050,731 persons visited state parks in Illinois in 1977, compared with 23,930,977 in '74; 28,091,275 in '75; and 29,757,625 in 1976, the 1977 total was 30,184,054.

Tamminga estimates that some increased attendance might be a result of the department's achievements in recent years by adding new parks and expanding acreage at others.

Meanwhile, he said a study recently released by the National Society on Park Resources indicates Illinois has risen dramatically in relation to other states in many areas of recreation facilities and their use.

The national group recently completed a two-year study on park resources in all 50 states with the most recent data included covering 1975.

That study, he said, shows that in total attendance Illinois ranked eighth among the 50 states and ninth in total operating and maintenance expenditures. In terms of total expenditures including such areas as interpretive programs, Illinois ranked 17th.

The state was 19th among the 50 for capital expenditures for land acquisition and 24th in capital expenditures for improvement, while it was 14th in land acquisition.

In terms of the gross operating and maintenance cost per visitor, Illinois rated 15th.

Tamminga said he was pleased by a finding that in the ratio of state park acreage to population, Illinois now ranks 25th. In recent years the state often had been criticized because the ratio used to place the state near the bottom for all states.

Now, Tamminga said, every state bordering Illinois has a lower ratio of park land to people.

In terms of total acres, Illinois is fifth, with 287,000 acres. The only states with more are New York with 2,377,000, Alaska with 1,394,000 and California with 843,000 and Pennsylvania, 286,000.

Studies also have indicated, Tamminga said, that a trend seems to be growing in Illinois to use the smaller, lesser-known parks more. Attendance figures for the state's larger parks do not seem to be keeping pace with growth at the smaller facilities, he said.

He cited Illinois Beach, which had approximately 1,700,000 visitors in 1973 but only 1,400,000 last year. Kankakee River State Park, another big facility, had 1,100,000 in '73 and rose to only 1,253,000 last year.

However, at Chain O'Lakes, where new land has been added and facilities expanded, 630,503 persons visited last year, nearly double the 1973 total of 394,091.

Tamminga said the ratio of attendance to state population placed Illinois 31st among all rated states, with the average Illinois resident visiting a state park 2.19 times a year.

Venice cleanup drive could lead to fines

The Venice City Council voted at its Tuesday night meeting to launch a citywide cleanup campaign Monday, May 1, and enforce anti-litter laws.

The council members instructed the city health inspectors to make close checks of areas where the citizens do not voluntarily cooperate in cleaning their yards, and to file complaints.

It was noted that fines up to $500 can be levied against any individuals not keeping their yards picked up.

"Venice is a good place to live, but we can make it even better with the help of all our citizens," Mayor William Ebersold said.

"We'll ask everyone to do his part on a voluntary basis the first two weeks then after that we will have no choice but to bring legal action against those few who don't want to keep things cleaned up."

Two citizens presented a petition signed by 37 residents of Main and Kerr streets, objecting to the noise and air pollution allegedly caused by the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad "piggy back" yard.

It was announced that the State of Illinois will begin blacktopping Route Three between Venice and National City this week.

Mayor Ebersold noted that the city sidewalk program has begun and will continue for some time as the workers are repairing sections of broken sidewalk throughout the city.

Traffic on the McKinley Bridge for the month of March 1978 showed 286,718 vehicles crosses which is an increase of 1,724 over March 1977.

The council declared structures at 1120, 1118 and 1123 Market St., 1211 Logan St. and 616 Mercedia as unsafe and a menace to health.

The council instructed the city attorney to proceed with legal measures to either have the owners of the buildings fix them immediately or the city will go to court to condemn the structures and tear them down.

The council gave the owners 30 days to comply.

Touand, Frazier in 'millionaire club' of firm

Michael Touand, 1801 Pontoon Road, and William T. Frazier, CPCU, CLU, 2126 Pontoon Road, have achieved membership in the Millionaire Club of the State Farm Insurance Companies, it was announced today.

"Touand and Frazier, local agents for State Farm, each placed $1,000,000 or more of quality life insurance during 1977 to earn this recognition," a spokesman said.

State Farm is the largest car and home insurer in the nation and ranks seventh among the 1,800 life insurance companies, based on personal life insurance in force.

Gov. Thompson defends higher mansion costs

Calling an Alton article about Executive Mansion costs rising from $186,500 to $312,000 a year a "cheap shot," Governor James R. Thompson said it was unfair and distorted.

Citing inflation, the governor added, "There wasn't a word in the story about what kind of entertaining is done at the mansion. It's just silly to conclude that we, by our lifestyle, have caused all these expenses to go up."

Food, liquor, kitchen items and utility services were cited as factors in the mansion's costs. "My wife has done everything in her power to keep costs down," Thompson concluded.

Fined $125 on cannabis charge

Edward R. Braun, 22, of 2516 Roney Drive, was fined $125 by Associate Judge Thomas Gibbons in Granite City Wednesday after Braun pleaded guilty to possession of cannabis.

He allegedly was a passenger in the auto of Gregory M. Jackson, 20, of 2248 Bern Ave., which was stopped by police after allegedly driving at 60 miles-per-hour in a 30 mph zone on Madison Avenue.

An officer alleged the auto turned from 20th Street onto Madison Avenue at a high rate of speed and the officer caught up to the auto and stopped it in the 1400 block of Madison Avenue.

Jackson was charged with speeding. Police then questioned Braun and alleged he put something in his trousers. A plastic bag containing marijuana was found in his clothing, it was alleged.

Job applications deadline Friday

Friday will be the last day on which persons may pick up applications to take an examination for jobs as substitute custodians in the Granite City School District, it was noted Wednesday.

An examination for the job will be given to applicants at 7 p.m. April 19 in the South High School cafeteria. Applications to take the examination may be obtained at the school district office, 20th and Adams streets.

Stop smoking clinic to open here Monday

Quadrant residents who plan to participate in "Stop Smoking Week" activities may be lighting their final cigarettes in the next few days. Preliminary events conclude this week and classes in how to stop smoking without gaining weight will begin Monday.

Today and Saturday, Hunter Crigler and his "dummy" Smokin' Sam will make appearances at Crossroads Plaza and Nameoki Village shopping centers to inform citizens about the program, and Friday night, a program officially opening Stop Smoking Week will be held at the YMCA auditorium.

Granite City Patrolman John W. Apperson will perform magic and be a speaker at the kickoff event, at which the public will be given an advance look at the week-long clinic which begins Monday.

Two clinic sessions a day will be held Monday through Friday at the YMCA with Crigler teaching the world-famous, five-day plan to stop smoking — "cold turkey."

He predicts 50 percent of those in the program will have stopped smoking by the third day and 97 percent will have stopped by the fifth day. A "detoxin" program to compensate for nicotine and poison in the system will include eating and drinking only fruit, fruit juices and water the first day of the classes. A special diet will be recommended for the remainder of the week to keep participants from gaining weight and to improve their health.

Regular and modest exercise also will be urged. Through the group therapy process and with instruction and diet, Crigler said the program has been a success nationwide. Both a morning and an evening session of the stop smoking clinic will be offered and those who plan to participate may choose which would be more convenient for them.

The morning session will be from 10 to 11 a.m. daily and the evening session will be from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. There is a $10 registration fee, which covers the cost of the materials for the classes.

Residents may pre-register by calling the YMCA at 876-7200 or 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. There is a $10 registration fee, which covers the cost of the materials for the classes.

The clinic is hosted by the YMCA and Granite City Officer Friendly Fred Hoffman is the campaign chairman.

FILIBUSTER BEGINS

The first filibuster in the United States Senate began Feb. 11, 1811; it continued through Feb. 21, 1811.

Mayor Paul Schuler has requested all Granite City residents and workers to avoid smoking between noon and 1 p.m. next Monday through Friday and churches and industries are being asked to sound whistles and sirens and ring bells at noon and at 1 p.m. to remind local residents to avoid smoking during that hour.

Two hurt in crash

Damon Kopeky, 19, of 2956 Grand Ave., and Michael McRaven, 19, of 2021 Cleveland Boulevard, were released this week from St. Elizabeth Hospital after being injured in an auto accident Friday night.

Kopeky's auto, in which McRaven was a passenger, was westbound on State Road 20 when the right wheels went off the edge of the pavement and the car went out of control and overturned.

Kopeky suffered multiple bruises and McRaven had abrasions to his left hip. Both were admitted for observation, but were released this week.

Priest appeals conviction here

At 4:50 p.m. Monday, 10 minutes before the deadline, a motion to appeal the disorderly conduct conviction of the Rev. Edwin F. Arentsen was filed with Associate Judge Thomas Gibbons in Granite City by Rev. Arentsen's attorney, Richard Allen.

Earlier Monday, Allen had requested an order from Judge Gibbons extending the time in which he could file the notice to appeal and Gibbons denied the request.

Another motion from Allen requesting clarification of Gibbons' sentence for the priest resulted in Gibbons giving him a typed copy of the sentence, transcribed from the verbal orders Gibbons gave March 10.

Rev. Arentsen, a Catholic priest who was involved in an anti-abortion demonstration at the Hope Clinic for Women in Granite City Jan. 19, was arrested for alleged disorderly actions in that demonstration and was found guilty by a jury of disorderly conduct.

Gibbons sentenced him March 10 to serve 18 months of probation and to go to the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville on "the prescribed day of worship" of the Catholic faith to administer religious services to the jail's inmates during that period. He was not yet served at the jail. He told Gibbons March 28 that he will not comply with the order.

The Press-Record has learned that Rev. Arentsen failed to appear before his probation officer yesterday for the third consecutive time and hail it away for you without obligation," Varadian stressed.

"However, residents are being asked to donate 50 cents or more, if they wish, when the trash is collected to help defray the cost of refreshments, which will be served by the volunteers during the clean up project," he added.

Since the clean up program started five years ago, the concept has proved highly successful each year.

"It is a matter of the civic pride our residents have for their homes and yards which compels us to do this each spring. We hope our efforts will be contagious and spread through the entire city," Varadian said.

Operation Clean Sweep April 22

Operation Clean Sweep will be activated again this spring in the Lincoln Place area for the fifth consecutive year. Jake "Hagop" Varadian, who spearheads the clean-up program, announced this week the fifth annual Operation Clean Sweep will take place on Saturday, April 22.

"We are notifying everyone today so they can start cleaning attics, basements and garages this weekend in advance of the pickup date," Varadian said.

All trash and unwanted items must be placed in the backyard alley before Saturday morning, April 22, the organizer said.

"Regardless of the amount or size of an individual's collection, the volunteer workers will haul it away for you without obligation," Varadian stressed.

"However, residents are being asked to donate 50 cents or more, if they wish, when the trash is collected to help defray the cost of refreshments, which will be served by the volunteers during the clean up project," he added.

Since the clean up program started five years ago, the concept has proved highly successful each year.

"It is a matter of the civic pride our residents have for their homes and yards which compels us to do this each spring. We hope our efforts will be contagious and spread through the entire city," Varadian said.

Drug-alcohol aid volunteers sought

AID Inc. (Aid through Information on Drugs) of Collinsville is seeking volunteers to assist with a "hotline" telephone service, to monitor a drop-in center, and to work with counselors in providing assistance to individuals who are having alcohol and/or drug problems and other personal problems.

AID also needs volunteers with administrative or public relations skills.

Each trainee will attend an 18-hour training course and then observe AID procedures for an additional six hours.

Training sessions will cover such topics as communication skills, crisis intervention, suicide prevention, drug and alcohol information, referral system and general techniques to assist those seeking help.

To participate and become a volunteer, Quad-Cityans may call 345-5200 after 6 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, or visit 413B Vandalia St.

All applicants are asked to attend three-hour training sessions Saturday, April 29, 1-4 p.m.; Sunday, April 30, 1-4 p.m.; Tuesday, May 2, 7:30-9:30 p.m.; Thursday, May 4, 7:30-9:30 p.m.; Saturday, May 6, 1-4 p.m.; and Sunday, May 7, 1-4 p.m.

Trainees will arrange for hours of observation individually.

Each new volunteer is to devote three hours per week to AID, and a total commitment of 50 hours is requested.

Northern lights visible tonight?

Quad-Cityans after sundown this evening may be able to see aurora borealis—a colorful, glowing display of light—in the northern skies.

Tonight's display is attributed to a solar flare occurring on the surface of the sun.

It may remain visible until early Friday morning as the sun rises.

While watching the sun is harmful to the eyes, aurora borealis can be viewed without danger.

Punchcard vote system praised

Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles regards the punchcard voting system tested in Godfrey in the March 21 primary election as successful. The vote recorders are much lighter than voting machines, and counting of votes was faster, she notes.

Security proved to be adequate, and there was little drop-off in voting for state representatives, in contrast to voting machines and paper ballots (attributed to cumulative voting confusion), Miss Bowles adds.

DRIVER IS ARRESTED James H. Drewry, 36, of 74 Kaesberg Park, Pontoon Beach, was charged with driving under the influence of liquor, having a suspended driver's license and reckless driving after police alleged his auto was seen northbound on Nameoki Road, from Wilson Avenue to Pontoon Road, hitting the curb and changing lanes in front of other cars at 11:55 p.m. Wednesday. Officers alleged he refused to take a breath test.

1.0 multiplier certified; begin rate extensions

A multiplying factor of 1.0 to be applied to Madison County property valuations has been received from the Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs, County Clerk Evelyn Bowles announced Wednesday.

The 1.0 factor will permit immediate work on the extension of tax rates for the 1977 tax year upon which tax bills for collection this summer will be based.

Had the multiplier been anything other than 1.0, the clerk's office would have been required to multiply all property assessments by that figure, a time-consuming process, Miss Bowles said.

She said work has begun on the Madison County rate extensions, but that million bills necessary in some instances to extend last year's tax rates for tax agencies whose homesteads following year, has been legal, Miss Bowles added.

Houston man on airport staff here

Geoffrey A. Scripture has been named assistant to the executive director of the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority. It was announced today by Executive Director Arven H. Saunders.

For the past three years, Scripture has been administrative assistant to the airport manager at Houston's William F. Hobby Airport, and previously was operations and safety officer there.

Hobby Airport is one of the busiest general aviation facilities in the nation and also provides air carrier service with Texas International and Southwest Airlines.

The position he fills here had been held for six years by James H. Thorsen, who left to join a private business firm in the Edwardsville area.

The St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority is responsible for developing a new major airport to serve the St. Louis region at the federally-approved Columbia-Waterloo site.

Scripture served in the Air Force for four years, and was stationed for a time at Scott Air Force Base. A licensed commercial pilot who holds instrument ratings, he is a member of the American Association of Airport Executives.

Campaign to end smoking on buses

"Smokers are allowed on this bus... smoking isn't."

That is one of a series of messages in vivid colors being posted aboard Bi-State Development Agency buses as part of a new campaign to eliminate smoking aboard public transit vehicles.

Bi-State Executive Director Barry M. Locke said today, "We're seeking to enlist the cooperation of our riders, who make more than 60 million trips a year on our system, as part of an all-out effort to eliminate smoking on buses."

Locke acknowledged that smoking continues to be a problem aboard Bi-State's nearly 1,000 buses, despite posted civil ordinances which have been in effect for as long as 60 years.

He noted that, while penalties for smoking on the bus may vary from the City of St. Louis to St. Louis County to Illinois, the basic law strictly prohibits smoking on any bus by anyone in any part of the agency's two-state service area.

"There's the very real problem of the immediate physical dangers that smoking can cause — from burnt holes in seats which must be restored by using tax dollars, to the potential of more serious fires caused by discarded smoking materials," Locke said.

"Our drivers are not policemen. Although they make every effort to remain aware of what is happening aboard their vehicles, their principal responsibility is the road safety of their passengers."

"The public, therefore, must assume a major part of the responsibility, as well as Bi-State, if we are to make progress in this important area of improved safety."

The brightly colored messages do not preach or threaten, but emphasize the courtesy factor, Locke pointed out.

"Many smokers may not be aware that tobacco can be very irritating to a non-smoker," he noted. "In fact, some riders are actually allergic to the smoke."

Messages include: "Be Kind to Non-Smokers"; "Smokers Make Life More Enjoyable..."; "Please Don't Light Up; Smoking On Your Bus Is Against the Law"; and "Thank You for Not Smoking on Your Bus."

"We hope to see a significant decrease in smoking aboard our fleet during the coming weeks,"

Truck tips into lake

A tractor-trailer dumping dirt onto a causeway in Horseshoe Lake tipped over, falling upside-down into the lake at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Although the roof of the truck cab was crushed and was underwater, the driver, Robert Haytner, 33, Beaton, Ill., suffered only minor injuries.

He was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital where he was treated for a cut to his right ear and abrasions to both lower legs and his right shoulder. X-rays were taken and he was released.

The causeway where the accident occurred is located off Bend Road about two miles east of Route 203, where the state has contracted for improvements for the Horseshoe Lake State Park.

Triangle Wrecking Co., Lincoln, Ill., the company which owned the truck, used a bulldozer to pull the cab and the trailer from the lake.

Rapid river rise likely

Officials anticipate rapidly rising rivers (Mississippi and Illinois) in the St. Louis district in the next several days and advise fleet and mooring locations to take special precautions to protect their operations by providing adequate lines and personnel to tend to the moorings.

In the pool areas of the Mississippi River above Alton, and in the lower reaches of the Illinois River, towboat operators are being requested to control their speeds to minimize any wake that can affect structures, levees and dwellings while the rivers are above flood stages.

"Cooperation in this matter is needed," James A. Petersen, chief, Operations Division, St. Louis District, Corps of Engineers, commented.

He was born in Granite City and attended Maryville grade school. He graduated from Henry Ford Community College, Dearborn, Mich., after finishing Lutheran High School classes at Dearborn.

His sports activity is long-distance running — 10 miles.

Top state court opens its books

The Illinois Supreme Court Tuesday gave up a seven-month-old fight and agreed to let the Illinois Audit Commission audit the books of the State Board of Law Examiners and the Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission.

The agencies collect data from judges and attorneys.

While permitting the independent audit, the high court insisted that the accounts are not actually public funds, and that under the separate powers concept the executive branch has no power to see judicial records.

By-law changes highlight annual Nameoki town meet

About 90 persons from two opposing political factions attended the annual meeting of Nameoki Township Tuesday night in the town hall. But very little was done at the meeting, other than minor revisions to the township's by-laws.

Michael Ropac was selected over Joseph Garcia as moderator for the meeting on a 45-35 vote of the electors. Town Clerk Douglas Teator then read the minutes of the April 12, 1977, annual meeting, which were approved.

Teator also read the township's by-laws and several recommended changes. One drew considerable discussion, that being a proposal to allow the board to select its own regular meeting night, rather than have the by-laws establish the meetings on the second and fourth Mondays of each month at 7 p.m.

Teator explained the board members do not intend to change the meeting night, but may find it necessary, should work commitments or other factors make another night more suitable.

Teator also explained that any change in the meeting dates presently, including changes for holidays, are in violation of the by-laws.

Garcia said residents who attend the meetings regularly have set their schedules around having Monday night meetings, and changing the meeting night would be inconvenient for them.

Former Nameoki Supervisor Louis Whitsell made a motion that the by-laws be amended to have meetings the second and fourth Monday of each month at 7 p.m., "except when it falls on a holiday, in which case the board may reset the date of the meeting."

New site for civil service state exams

Illinois Department of Personnel Director William J. Boys, this week announced that the civil service examination program conducted on the third Friday of each month at the National Guard Armory in East St. Louis will be transferred to the State Regional Office Building, 10 Collinsville Ave., effective with the April 21 testing date.

Testing will continue to start at 9:30 a.m.

The Illinois Merit System examination program is conducted in Chicago and Springfield on a full-time basis, and at 10 field centers throughout the state on regular monthly and bi-monthly schedules.

"Interest in employment in Illinois government has been particularly good in the East St. Louis area," Director Boys said, "and this change to the State Regional Office Building will make examination participation more comfortable for candidates."

Mrs. Ritchie dies at 61

Mrs. Kittie (Reading) Ritchie, 61, of 1102 E. Clark, Litchfield, Ill., formerly of Granite City, died at 1:20 p.m. Monday at St. Francis Hospital, Litchfield.

She was employed as a clerk for the secretary of state for 15 years.

Mrs. Ritchie was born in Rombauer, Mo., and had been a local resident for 33 years, prior to moving to Litchfield nine years ago.

Her husband, Maynard Charles Ritchie, died Feb. 8, 1959.

Survivors include three daughters, Mrs. Darrell (Nancy) Hamilton of Granite City, Mrs. Joseph (Cleo) Noyak, Gillespie, Ill., Mrs. Maio (Debra) DelPozzo, Staunton; two sons, Monte Ritchie, Granite City, and Billy Ritchie of Litchfield; three sisters, Mrs. LeRoy (Ruth) Hesse, Mrs. Nick (Flora) ("Tiny") Petrillo, and Mrs. Olin (Pearl) Giesler, all of Granite City; 22 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are given in the obituary column.

THEFT FROM GARAGE

Two motorcycles, a bicycle, a lawn mower, a jig saw, a sander, a tool box and tools, all valued at about $1,095, were stolen from the garage at the home of David Lomax, 5148 Lakeview Drive, near Pontoon Beach, it was discovered at 4:50 p.m. Monday. A hole was knocked in a door to gain entry.

meeting at its discretion. Whitsell's motion lost on a 31-44 vote. Joseph Boyer of State Park Place then made a motion that the by-laws be approved with the amendments Teator initially presented and that motion passed without opposition.

The action sets the meetings at "a regularly scheduled date and time designated by the board." Township Trustees Norman Heasler and W. Lee Adams told those present they do not plan to change the regular meeting date or time. Other by-law changes primarily clarify language or bring the document into compliance with state law. The by-laws did state the town electors shall have the powers as set forth in Article Four of the Township Organization," and Township Attorney Irvin C. Slate Jr. commented, "There is no such thing." The wording was changed to limit the powers of the electors to those specified in Chapter 34 of the Illinois Revised Statutes.

Federal revenue sharing and anti-recession fiscal assistance funds were added to the funds the trustees audit annually, and public assistance funds were excluded, since they are audited by the state.

proved without opposition. Teator also read the financial report which showed the cash flow and balance for each fund during the fiscal year. Cash on hand at the end of the fiscal year was reported at $22,165 in the town fund, $14,476 in the general assistance fund, $4,780 in municipal retirement, $15,301 in the revenue sharing fund, $4,672 in the anti-recession fiscal assistance fund, $3,650 in the road and bridge fund, $30,242 in the special hard road fund, and $140 in the special bridge fund. The meeting then was adjourned since no new business was presented.

Youth charged with burglary

An informational document was issued Monday by the Madison County state's attorney's office charging Ken R. Biggs, 17, of 2328 Nameoki Road, with burglary in connection with a weekend incident at Fornaszewski Music, 3009 Nameoki Road.

Officers responded to a burglar alarm at 2:15 a.m. Saturday and discovered a rear window had been broken. A youth was seen nearby by Sgt. George Gallas who apprehended him.

Gallas alleged the youth dropped a paper bag and found the bag nearby. John Fornaszewski, owner of the store, identified a lighting fixture and three cigar boxes in the bag as having come from the music store, police said.

Emergency care of holly

By WANYE B. SIEFERT Area Adviser

In Horticulture Struggling holly plants need a little help from a friend.

Two years of freeze damage to holly plants has resulted in a weakened plant struggling for its life. Prompt fertilizing with a tree or garden fertilizer is necessary to stimulate new growth.

Judgment is required regarding how much to add. A cup full of fertilizer is adequate for a large plant. Scale the rate down, depending on the plant is question.

If you have a holly tree that seems ok but has some brown leaves, spring fertilizing will promote normal recovery. For tree-types of holly, apply 1/4 pound of fertilizer for each foot of height.

Scatter the fertilizer on the ground beneath the limbs. It is not necessary to rake out the old leaves before adding the fertilizer.

+++ Woody galls occasionally appear on pin oak and shingle oak as golfball sized black or dark green knots on small limbs. The gall forming wasp hibernates in the galls until spring, then emerges as the new shoots are just developing.

Among thickets of oaks the problem becomes so severe it deforms some trees and kills the rest.

When the problem is an occasional gall scattered throughout the tree, prune off and burn the galls before new growth appears.

+++ Most deciduous hedges — the ones that lose their leaves in the winter — will survive total pruning to become attractive small plants in place of bushy large plants.

When hedges become to tall and woody, one way to reduce their size is to cut it off at the ground. If you leave two-inch stumps these plants will soon produce new shoots to become an attractive new plant.

Total pruning is most effective just before new leaves and shoots develop.

Plants like forsythia, honeysuckle and spiraea will also respond to total pruning, but the pruning should be delayed until after bloom.

Whichever plant you prune, or experiment with, be careful not to restrict the new shoots until late summer.

Modest pruning after this spurt of growth will improve the shape and beauty without stimulating too much late summer growth and the risk of winter injury.

will be obliged to move to the outlying areas and a school will be needed to accommodate new students."

Frank Krause, assistant school superintendent, replied to questions concerning busing the children and said the longest route with a new schedule would be no more than three miles and other routes would be a shorter distance.

Dewey Melton, who voted against keeping the school in operation, noted the building is in need of repairs and some of the classrooms are now empty. Ronald Landman, maintenance supervisor, was asked for an opinion on the needed repairs at Stallings School. He reported the roof will need some work, an inside stairway will have to be replaced and at the present time the septic system is being pumped at least twice a month.

Voting in favor of continued operation of the school were Mofsky, Moore, Saltich, Stucke and Worthen. Norman Hall was not present at the meeting.

At the March 14 meeting, Krause, chairman of a committee that included principals representing six schools, presented a comprehensive report on the necessity of closing the school.

A loss of state aid because of declining enrollment and the fact that the state has not been able to meet its obligations, resulting in a loss to the district of about $600,000 during the 1976-77 school year, were listed at that meeting as financial reasons for the move to close the school.

Krause noted in his report that closing of a school would save a quarter of a million dollars. Stallings School was selected at that time because it would not increase bus transportation costs.

The feeling of the board at the March meeting was that as continued decline of enrollment and deficit spending continues to grow, other facilities also will need to be consolidated.

To keep Stallings School in operation the report listed a cost of $142,000 for certificated staff, $55,562 for non-certificated staff and physical operations of $36,150, for a total of $233,712.

In other business, the newly-organized board made committee appointments for the forthcoming year as follows: Norman Hall, representative, and Mofsky as alternate, to the Special Education Board; George Moore, delegate, with Hall as alternate, to the Southwestern Division of the Illinois Association of School Boards; Stucke, as delegate and Saltich as alternate, to the Large District Council; Saltich as member and Melton as alternate, to the Area Vocational School.

Saltich a member, and Worthen as alternate, to the Citizens Advisory Council; Melton, as member of Title I Advisory Council, and Mofsky as alternate; Stucke, Mofsky and Melton to the policy committee with Worthen as alternate; Worthen and Moore as members of the negotiations committee. American Federation of Teachers, with Stucke as alternate, and Saltich as assistant trainer scholarship committee representative.

A resolution approving the canvass of the April 8 election of two members of the Board of Education for three-year terms, was presented and accepted. The canvass showed no change from the unofficial returns.

Regular semi-monthly meetings of the board will remain on the first and third Tuesdays of the month, to convene at 7:30 p.m. at the board office, 20th and Adams streets. The next board meeting will be on May 2.

'New look'

A descending dove will adorn the tower, symbolic of the "Holy Spirit."

The Koilonia building will be taken down for additional parking area. The structure is the former American Legion building.

"In undertaking this project, the congregation hopes to add beauty to the area and still have it look like a church," Rev. Edwards said.

"We want to say to Granite City this building is a church and we are here as Christians to share and help the community and individuals in anyway we can," he added.

The cost of the project, which the 400 members have already pledged, estimated at $50,000. The project is being constructed by Lindsay Construction and Dickey and Associates, both of Granite City.

The church entrance now faces Grand Avenue. "When the building was built, a grocery store which burned down in 1971 occupied what is now the church parking lot."

Prizes for the evening went to Leona McCoy, Angie Buehler and refreshments were served by Mrs. Frazier and Shirley Robinson.

Tri-City opens '78 season Saturday night

GRANITE CITY — "Saturday Night Fever," in the form of auto racing, is set to begin this weekend in Granite City with the Dirt Trackers Auto Racing Association presenting its 1978 version of late model and sportsman stock car racing on Tri-City Speedway's dirt oval.

"Gentleman" Jim Moughan of Springfield, Ill., a 26-year veteran race car driver turned promoter, heads the sanctioning association and has also added five sprint-car racing dates and two midwest racing dates in addition to the regular weekly schedule.

The Association's Public Relations Director, Ken Thompson, announces that several drivers who excelled last season in the sportsman division will compete this year at Tri-City in the late model class, including Granite City's Dean Aarne. Aarne captured the 1977 season sportsman track championship upon accumulating a total of 3,220 points.

ALTHOUGH defending late model division track titlist Wib Spalding of Pontoon Beach has yet to commit himself as a competitor for the new season, many of his cohorts are standing in the wings anxious to dethrone him.

Among those trying for Spalding's crown this season will be Bill Myers of East Alton, a veteran of more than 20 years on the local racing scene. Myers, fielding a 1976 Camaro this season, will seek to end a championship dry-spell which began seven years ago after a successful bid for his division's track title back in 1970.

The East Alton "hot dog" (top competitor) will have to play catchup to the other drivers however, since a non-racing accident will sideline his efforts until mid-May.

MYERS relates that he suffered an eye injury this past January and underwent two operations to his left eye the day before his 44th birthday for removal of a piece of steel which threatened full recovery of his eyesight.

"I had never during my career seriously thought of quitting the sport until this happened," said Myers. "I told my wife, Judy, that I would rather sell the race car rather than become a potential hazard to the other drivers by competing without full vision."

Noting that Moughan is starting his "rookie" year as a promoter, Myers is putting his full support behind Moughan's efforts.

"I've known Jim since about 1958," he said. "He's a super guy who earned his nickname as 'Gentleman Jim' because he was always real quiet around the race track and never gave anyone any trouble." TRI-CITY will also see the return this season of Granite City's Jack Yates who finished third in the sportsman division standings two-years ago and then set out last season due to an ailment.

Robert "Bob" Smart, owner of Burger King Restaurants in Granite City and Fairview Heights, will not only sponsor a late model stock car to be driven by Granite City's Chuck Milam, but will debut as a sportsman class stock car driver.

Tri-City has also attracted the talents of Caseyville's Bob Geaschel, who will challenge other late model division drivers for the season's coveted crown.

Geaschel enters the season as a veteran of local modified racing competition.

RETURNING here also after an absence of several years will be Don Carter of Hillsboro, who has earned the respect of fellow drivers after proving that his one-arm handicap does not make him less of a challenger.

Noting that auto racing not only provides thrills and entertainment for drivers and fans alike, Myers is also quick to point out that the sport can also be frustrating.

"I recall late last season when I was leading a championship race and was running away from the pack," said Myers. "A battery in my car came apart, forcing me into the pits. I can safely say that battery cost me

$1,000."

Winning isn't everything to a race driver though notes Myers. "Finishing in the top six positions every race night keeps me happy. If I take the green flag for the feature event, my whole night is lost if I don't take the checkered flag too."

The East Alton driver expects to see another successful season at Tri-City, not only for himself but for Moughan as well.

"Tri-City has and always will be the hub of Midwest racing," said Myers. "There are more stock cars in this area waiting to compete than the U.S. Auto Club (USAC) has nationally in its entire late model division."

Saturday night's racing program at Tri-City Speedway will start at 8 o'clock.

Orphans edge North, 71-69

By PETE HAYES

Press-Record Sports Editor GRANITE CITY — Granite City North head track coach Harry Lang shook his head. "We had it figured out after the Mineral Area Meet last week that we could have gotten beat here today by 30 points. But we didn't. We won some events we hadn't counted on, and took some third and second places that we hadn't figured on. Of course, we also didn't do as well in some of the events as we had hoped we would."

What all that was about was yesterday's dual track meet at North with Centralia, a South Seven Conference power. The outcome? A 71-69 victory for Centralia's Orphans, who found themselves needing a victory in the mile relay, the last event of the meet, to win. If the Steelers had won the event, the win would have been theirs. Needless to say, Centralia won the mile relay.

In fact, they ran away with it, beating North by more than 10 seconds, 3:39.6 to 3:49.8. Going into the event, North was leading by three points.

CENTRALIA also won the two-mile relay, beating North's team of Jeff Joyce, Danny Buer, Glenn Edwards and Aaron Hickam, 8:39.4 to 8:53.0. The Orphans won the 400 yard relay in 47.3 but the time was academic, as North's team dropped their baton and was disqualified.

MIKE BAKER continued his dominance of the distance events, taking the two-mile run in 10:16.8 and the mile run in 4:52. Greg Stout of North was second in each event, running a 10:43.3 in the two-mile and a 4:48.1 in the mile, edging out Centralia's Doug Laws at the wire. Laws ran the mile in 4:48.7. Centralia's Stan Krooch was third in the two-mile.

The high hurdles were won by David Patrick of Centralia in 15.9. Kenny Brooks of North was second in 16.7 and Mark Patrick (David's brother) of Centralia was third in 17.0. Don Cook of North won the 100-yard dash in a time of 10.7. He out-leaped Centralia's Tony Worlds at the wire for the victory. Worlds also ran a 10.7. Devon Dobbs of Centralia was third in 10.9.

North's Glenn Edwards was the winner of the 88-yard run in a time of 2:07.6. Rusty Sherman of Centralia was second in 2:08.6 and Mark Featherly of Centralia was third in 2:10.6. can't do any thing without hits," stated assistant coach John Modica about his Warriors.

The Tigers went for three more in the fourth, where Gamble scored when Beuhler doubled to left field, where Gamble singled. Darrell Wehrnd reached on a Hogan error (center field), which scored Beuhler. After two sacrifices, with Beuhler on third, Rob Harris singled to center to give the Tigers their last run, 4-1.

The Tigers had four runs on seven hits with no errors whereas South scored two on two hits with two errors lowering their win-loss record to 6-3.

Tretter pitched for six innings with Tom Mahl in relief. Mahl faced three, allowed one hit, and picked off one at second. Tretter pitched to 25 batters, allowing four runs and six hits. He struck out two, both swinging, and walked one and turned one double play.

Althoff 12, Madison 3 Madison pitcher Ray Peoples gave up two hits and five walks in the first inning at Belleville Althoff yesterday, paving the way for the Crusaders to score five times in the frame and allowing them to coast in from there.

Madison got two of those runs back in the second inning when Juan Gardner singled, short stop Joe Piechocinski reached first on an error by the Althoff shortstop and Keith Layton singled home Gardner. Piechocinski went to third and scored on Bob Niehaus' ground out.

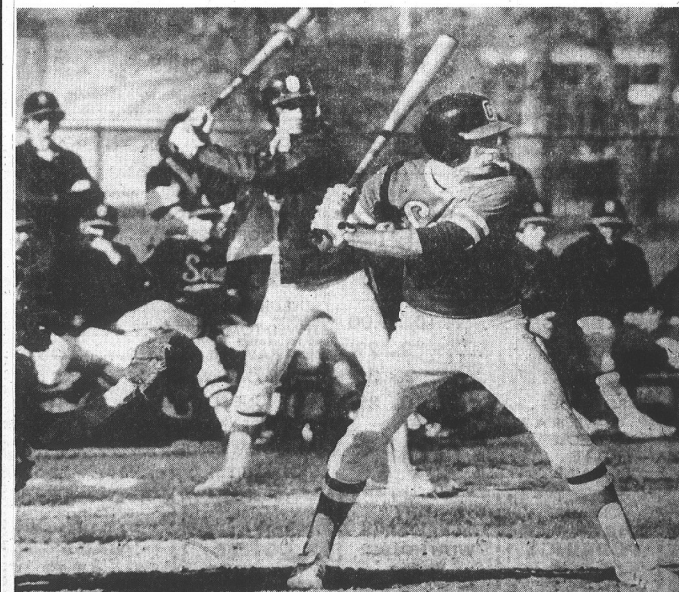

A hit and two Madison errors led to three more Althoff runs in the third inning, giving the hosts a comfortable 6-2 lead.

Peoples tried to make up for some of those walks in the bottom of the third when he hit a 380-foot blast over the centerfield fence for a solo home run.

Althoff scored once again in the fourth inning and three more times in the fifth to coast in with the victory.

Madison's record falls to 1-5 on the season. Madison had scheduled two games earlier in the week, Monday at Granite City North and Tuesday at home against Breesse Mater Dei. The Monday game was rained out and Tuesday's encounter was postponed because of wet field conditions.

No plans have been made for making up either games as of yet.

TWO BATS ARE BETTER THAN ONE — Granite City South's Larry Heagy (foreground) and pitcher Ray Tretter seem to have the same idea here in a baseball game against Edwardsville Tuesday afternoon. Actually, Heagy is the batter and Tretter is getting ready to do so in the on-deck circle.

Girls' softball begins next week for Granite City

By PETE HAYES
Press-Record Sports Editor

GRANITE CITY - Girls' softball season for Granite City's two high schools is just around the corner.

The inaugural season for the sport will begin this Monday, April 17 when O'Fallon plays the Steelerettes at O'Fallon.

North's first game is set for Thursday, April 20 when the Steelerettes play O'Fallon.

SOUTH COACH Barbara Leach is in no way a stranger to softball. She is a former professional player.

Leach played for one season in the 1950's with the PT. Wayne (Ind.) Daisies. "I got $377 a month for playing in the league," said Leach. "We played teams from Indiana, Michigan and Illinois."

A native of Terre Haute, Ind., Leach has taught physical education at South for three years after receiving her degree from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

"When I heard we were going to have a softball team this season," she said, "I really wanted to coach it."

THE TEAM Leach will be coaching is made up of mostly freshmen. There are only two sophomores, one junior and two seniors on the entire squad.

"Most of the girls have a lot of experience from playing in the park leagues," she said. "I don't think the Park District program gets the recognition it deserves. These girls are pretty well prepared."

One aspect of the high school game which is different from that played in the park leagues is that it is a fast-pitch game.

"Karen Spencer will be our main pitcher," said Leach. "She's coming along, but it just takes a while for anything new like this to sink in."

"I REALLY don't know what to expect this season," she added. "I know that Edwardsville is supposed to have a tough team and I know that Cahokia will be awfully hard to beat (Cahokia is the defending state champion).

South will host the sub-regional tournament in the middle of May. But by then both North and South will have just four games each under their belts.

"THIS IS done in every new sport to see if there is interest," said North coach Debbie Holt.

"Next year we'll probably be playing eight games and schedule more and more each year."

Holt is a 1975 graduate of SIUE, a native of Madison and has been at North for two years.

"I'm really excited about the season," she said. "We had 25 girls out for the team early in the season but we've trimmed it down to 15 for the season."

"There are quite a few good athletes on the team. The morale is high too. Sometimes I think the girls might be more excited about the season than I am."

Both coaches expressed a need for their teams to work on fundamentals. "It all boils down to knowing when and where to go with the ball," said Leach.

"But with more practice and some actual game-experience under our belts, we'll be all right."

North's pitcher will be Cheryl Schoofield. "She's just a superb athlete," said Holt. "If there's sport to be played, she can do it."

Other Steelerette Pitchers hopefuls are Connie Cooke and Kim Collins.

"I TOLD the girls that there is one thing about softball which makes it different from other sports," said Leach. "To play volleyball you need to be big. To play basketball you need to be big. But for softball, it doesn't make any difference how big you are as long as you can field, hit and throw the ball."

Old coins taken

Only a few old coins are known missing after a burglary at the home of Mrs. Eva Shearer, 2600 Benton St., which was discovered Monday.

Glass in a door was broken to gain entry. Closets and a chest were searched and the coins were taken from one of two jewelry boxes which were opened.

Jane Fonda against corporations' power

Several hundred top corporations have assumed monolithic control over the United States, actress Jane Fonda told an audience of nearly 1,000 Tuesday afternoon at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Miss Fonda, speaking for the second time at SIUE, said the country's simultaneous inflation and unemployment problem is "the role of huge corporations."

She declared there are a handful of men who run the country—men never elected to power. She said most of these people determine the fate of the country, and make key decisions regarding foreign policy, the state of the economy, education and the quality of the environment.

Regarding the economy, Miss Fonda said, "Our democratic rights do not extend into the economic arena."

"Corporations have taken control. Consumers have no control over the prices or the quality of things they buy."

She alleged that many corporations care more about profit than the consumer they serve.

"When corporations profit, it makes serious inroads to the health of our nation," she said. "When the nation faces this problem, there are serious human effects," including dependence on drugs, and the use of "weird" therapies and religions, she said.

"People feel helpless, hopeless. They're frightened," she said, adding that the result is a "tragic waste of the human energy that people turn inside themselves."

Miss Fonda suggested many solutions to this problem. "For starters, you've got to get mad," she told the audience. "Things don't have to be this way."

She encouraged the audience not to "feel hopeless and cynical," comparing one person's fight to a single drop of water on a rock. "The one drop has little effect, but it is not wasted."

"It will form together with other drops all in the same direction and become a waterfall. The rock will no longer be durable and can result in the restructuring of an entire continent."

Miss Fonda said apathy on college campuses is only a cover. "Below the surface is a sleeping giant."

"Most students are angry and confused. They resist this feeling of helplessness."

She said the difference between political activism of the 1960s and now is that many people spoke out on one or two particular issues in the '60s; "now, the issue is everything," she said.

On a nationwide level, Miss Fonda suggested crash job programs, public works on corporate boards of directors, and a national charter to

BOOT SAVES FOOT

Chuck Valle, 23, of 2550 Hemlock Ave., was treated at 4:28 p.m. Wednesday at St. Elizabeth Hospital for powder burns, and then released. Valle reportedly shot himself in the right leg, with the slug found inside his boot, while he was assembling an antique gun.

RELEASED TODAY

Dean Culver, 14, was released from Cardinal Glennon Hospital today after being admitted overnight for dehydration and a possible head injury. The youth reportedly fell from a moving car, and sustained a bump on the top of his head, abrasions to the lower back and chest pains.

The call-back followed approval by the First National Bank of East St. Louis of a $600,000 tax loan which will provide the district with operating funds until tax collections get under way this summer.

Sanitary district recalls a workers

The board said all workers on the regular payroll, including union employees and manpower workers, are to report back on their jobs Monday.

In addition to the layoffs made necessary by the financial crisis, other employees who remained on the job for the past six weeks have been working without pay until funds became available.

The board was informed that a broken pump has created additional problems in a break in the main sanitary sewer line leading into the Cahokia sewage treatment plant.

The break, reported during the weekend, is of major proportions, collapsing about 400 feet of the line, according to A. Wendell Wheadon, executive director of the district. By-pass pumping was begun, pumping sewage about 800 feet from one manhole to another.

The U.S. and Illinois Environmental Protection Agencies have authorized the district to begin repair of the line, but with district funds. Wheadon told the board that the district may make the repairs under regulations established by EPA and then request a reimbursement, although no reimbursement has been guaranteed.

The break is the second in the Cahokia sanitary line. The trustees indicated they will amend an earlier grant request which had been made because of the earlier break, to include funds for repairing the latest sewer collapse.

News notes

The Illinois Dangers Drugs Commission urged Tuesday that sale of PCP, an animal tranquilizer known as Angel Dust be restricted, as well as the substance Talwin.

A proposed oil pipeline from Pine Bend, Minn., to Wood River is being opposed by the present county government and committee structure rather than creating a new agency. A County Board decision may be made next Wednesday, April 19.

The 1977-78 year is proving to be the worst financially in the Illinois state lottery's 34-year history, prompting cost-cutting efforts, the control board was told Monday. The year's revenue may drop to $78 million after three times topping the $100 million mark.

In previously undecided legislative races, Sen. Harold Washington (D-Chicago), Sen. John Graham (R-Barrington) and John Petermann (R-Chicago) for the Senate were declared to be nominees Monday by the State Board of Elections, along with House aspirants John O'Connell, Anne Willer, Emil Bucock and William Walsh in the 6th District and Susan Catania (R) and Willie Reid (R) in the 22nd.

State Sen. Sam Vadalaebene obtained Senate Rules Committee approval yesterday to seek federal planning funds for a proposed SIUE gymnasium considered this year.

About 4,300 of the nearly 8,000 U.S. train derailments last year were due to poorly maintained roadbeds, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said Tuesday in announcing tighter safety rules and increased track maintenance aid.

Those who tow anything heavier than a 6,000-pound trailer or boat with a full-size car or station wagon will have to consider a pickup truck or van instead for such tasks, beginning this fall, a Ford Motor Co. official predicted in Chicago Tuesday. He cited increasing of autos to meet federal fuel economy standards.

Back rules are allowed but below-the-waist massages were outlawed in St. Louis County unincorporated areas Tuesday by a panel of the Missouri Court of Appeals.

Hundreds of backers and foes of Equal Rights Amendment ratification engaged in a shouting duel at the State Capitol rotunda yesterday trying to influence Illinois legislators.

Congressman Melvin Price of this district, recipient of a $500 campaign contribution from Tongson Park, has reiterated that the gift was regarded as routine and went to the 1970 campaign committee. "Just about every member of Congress knew him," Price said this week. "He never asked me for a thing." The congressman added that many Washington receptions took place at the Park-owned Georgetown Club.

She had been a longtime resident of this area and also had resided in Sparta, Ill. Survivors include her husband, Bruce Champion, an aged retired engineer; a daughter, Mrs. Mina McBrien of Dayton; nieces, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are given in the obituary column.

Transfer of Madison County to new federal court district may be unjustified due to caseload and political factors Legislation in the U.S. Senate to alter this state's federal court districts has high-level backing—that of Senators Percy and Stevenson—but could prove to be detrimental to this community and Madison County. Reconsideration of some of the provisions is in order.

The northern area would remain almost the same. In the remainder of the state, the line between central and southern districts would be drawn roughly east-and-west, rather than the present diagonal division. Announced goals are shorter distance and added convenience for the typical court user or defendant.

A major change from the local viewpoint is that Madison County would be switched from the middle part of the state to the southern end.

The current federal grand jury investigation admittedly has been proceeding slowly in terms of indictments, but a massive amount of testimony and evidence has been compiled at Springfield. It cannot accurately be said that this area is being ignored, despite the nearly 100-mile distance to the state capital and federal court district headquarters. And many U.S. court services affecting Madison County are provided within the county itself, at Alton.

Transfer of this county to the district dominated by East St. Louis would in some ways add another political-governmental entanglement linking Madison and St. Clair Counties. For whatever the various reasons, this intertwining of the affairs of the two populous, adjacent counties usually has proved harmful to Madison County citizens and taxpayers.

An additional factor is that the proposed new southern district might well have a bigger population and caseload than the existing East St. Louis district, but would still have only two federal judges. Meanwhile, the Chicago-dominated district would increase from 13 to 16 judges, and the middle part of the state would be given a third judge.

If there has to be a change in the boundaries, undoubtedly Madison County residents would prefer by a large margin to remain affiliated with the central area. (We've tried to use geography rather than the issue of caseload to explain the confusion of the confusing nature of the court designations, in which Southern is north of Eastern.)

It is true that the whole subject of district realignment has been under scrutiny for a long period, but one more trip "back to the drawing board" seems appropriate.

It might be noted that the 13-member Committee to Study Federal Judicial Districts in Illinois included two St. Clair County residents, far more than the quarter-million to 11-million population ratio would justify. And no Madison County residents had an opportunity to serve on the committee.

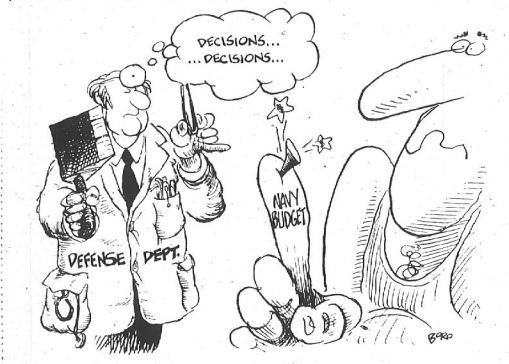

Beautiful new town hall available for increased public use

The new Granite City Township Hall is fulfilling a variety of official duties as well as serving as a center for senior citizen activities, wedding receptions and other public events.

The Town Board met at the new building on 21st Street and Delmar Avenue last week, and the initial annual town electors' meeting since its completion was conducted there Tuesday evening. The structure houses offices of the supervisor and assessor and their staffs and also the Quad-City special education regional headquarters.

Gifted Architect Henry Gabriel provided the design, making the town hall pleasing to the eyes as well as utilitarian, and the value to the public well above general use of the building increases.

Who judges the judges?

By MIKE KIENZLER
SPRINGFIELD — A circuit judge who illegally required some defendants to get haircuts has precipitated a clash between the Illinois Supreme Court and the state's judicial watchdog agency.

The controversy between the Court and the Judicial Inquiry Board, set up by the 1970 state constitution to initiate complaints against judges, has been tied into a tangle of legalese. But it boils down to one issue: who makes the rules under which judges themselves are judged?

The Supreme Court, the final authority on the Illinois constitution, says it does, and the Court has the power to make that ruling stick.

But the Judicial Inquiry Board, in an unprecedented step, has taken its appeal to the court of public opinion.

The dispute stems from a well-publicized case involving Judge Samuel Harrod of the 11th Judicial Circuit. The Judicial Inquiry Board in 1976 charged Harrod with abusing his office by sometimes ordering his jailed defendants to have haircuts as a condition of probation. In at least one case, he ordered a defendant before the defendant even appeared in his court, according to the Judicial Inquiry Board. The Illinois Courts Commission, which rules on complaints brought by the Supreme Court, agreed Harrod had no authority to require the haircuts, and the Commission suspended the judge for one month.

The action brought opposition from most state legal associations on grounds the Commission's action interfered with judges' sentencing discretion.

"This case does not deal with a question of a judge's integrity or his honesty, or even an alleged impropriety in his personal life," argued the Illinois Judges' Association in a brief filed with the Supreme Court. "It deals with the very act of judging."

Allowing the Commission such latitude, critics say, judges might be disciplined simply for unpopular rulings, the group said.

The Supreme Court reaffirmed the Board's power to deal with judicial impropriety in the courtroom. A judge who "repeatedly and grossly abuses his judicial power" ought to be subject to punishment, the Court said. But the court nevertheless tossed out Harrod's suspension on the narrower grounds that the Courts Commission had to interpret the Illinois sentencing law before finding Harrod guilty. Only circuit, appellate or Supreme Court judges have the power to interpret state statutes, the Court said.

The court also told the Inquiry Board and Courts Commission to limit disciplinary actions against judges to their own rules on judicial conduct.

And the court made its ruling in spite of a constitutional provision that says decisions of the Courts Commission are not appealable. The Court said it was not ruling on the merits of Harrod's case, but on whether the Board and Commission had authority to take action in the first place.

The Inquiry Board asked for a rehearing, but was turned down.

Inquiry Board Chairman Rubin Cohn, a University of Illinois law professor, said: "My concern here is that the Judicial Inquiry Board has had their authority severely circumscribed, based on what I believe is an incorrect interpretation of the constitution," he said.

More mandatory, more long prison terms

By LEE ASCHOFF
SPRINGFIELD — "Don't do the crime if you can't do the time," exhorts the theme song of a popular cops and robbers TV show.

That's not too different from the message Gov. James Thompson sent out when his Class X sentencing law went into effect, a law which, among other things, should put murderers behind bars for an average 3.3 years longer than previously.

Class X is the title of a group of serious crimes that has lent its name to revamping of the sentencing philosophy in Illinois.

Class X is nothing more than an ominous name for a group of crimes already on the books (except for the new clause of heinous battery). But is Thompson's new line on crime really that hard?

There are calculated increases in behind-bars time for perpetrators of other more serious crimes (Classes X-1 and X-2). It's been estimated that more persons will end up behind bars as a result of mandatory sentencing for the more serious crimes.

The Class X crimes, armed violence, aggravated kidnapping for ransom, deviant sexual assault, armed robbery, rape, treason, certain narcotics violations and aggravated arson, were deemed so serious by Thompson that he created the separate classification for them outside the scale already in use.

(The term of Thompson's sentencing revisions, like determine sentences, day-for-day good conduct credit and abolition of parole, lies in a critique of the state's sentencing provisions that was written by David Fogel, executive director of the Enforcement Commission under former Gov. Dan Walker.)

For the Class X crimes the sentences are set. Persons convicted are assured of between six and 30 years in jail.

Under new sentencing philosophy, there is less emphasis on rehabilitating the convicted felon and more emphasis on keeping him or her in jail.

Murder under the new law carries a prison sentence of from 20 to 40 years. Under aggravated circumstances, the person could receive a sentence of death or life.

Under the new law a convicted murderer must serve slightly more than 10 years as opposed to less than seven years under the old law.

Back on the books also are the possibility of concurrent sentences as opposed to consecutive ones, and payment of restitution or fines in addition to serving time in jail.

"Habitual offender sentencing" is the official name for another concept included in Class X, a concept that has been in and out of vogue since the crime-ridden days of Prohibition and Al Capone.

Where it has been on the books, it's become known to police and crooks alike as the "three-time loser" law and it says anyone convicted of three serious crimes (Class X) on separate occasions, must be adjudged a habitual criminal and sent away for the rest of his life.

But it will be years before this portion of the law comes into effect, since all three crimes must be committed after Feb. 1.

While those are the "sticks," there are also "carrots" under the new system.

The first carrot or potential reward is a credit of one day off the sentence for one day of good conduct. Every sentence is, in effect, cut in half if the prisoner behaves.

Under the old law, there were three types of "good time"—statutory good time, compensatory good time and meritorious good time. Only meritorious good time remains.

The Second "Carrot" in the sentencing system is an extended use of "alternative" sentences. This means probation, conditional discharge, periodic imprisonment, fines and combinations of the above instead of straight prison time.

Under the new law, probation is indicated as the sentence of choice for most lesser felonies. It is to be given routinely unless reasons warrant otherwise. Those reasons must be introduced at a sentencing hearing.

Waterway fees will affect energy, inflation

Memphis Commercial-Appeal comment — Sen. Peter Domenici (D-N. Mex.) is still pushing hard for heavy fees on waterway users.

He calls the House-passed fee of 4 to 6 cents a gallon on barges and tow lines a "token tax." What Domenici wants is cost recovery.

But cost recovery is a tricky business. It demands precise information on who's benefiting and by how much, which is probably why it isn't mandated 100 percent from other kinds of commercial transport.

There are a number of subsidies, too, from municipally-financed terminals and Federal Aviation Administration grants and traffic control for the airlines to Conrail and Amtrak for the railroads.

The 100 percent subsidy to build and maintain waterway users' rights-of-way hardly seems fair to other forms of transportation or to the taxpayers.

But it's just plain foolish to seek it to water users, Domenici says, when nobody knows what this would do to businesses and regions that rely on water traffic and when nobody knows what's fair.

Domenici's proposal calls for recovering all navigation-related costs of inland waterways, which would be the equivalent of a 42-cent-a-gallon fuel tax.

He's floated a number of compromises, including one worked out with the Department of Transportation calling for a 10-cent-a-gallon tax.

And department officials are looking hard for such a substantial fee that President Carter says are the price for signing this bill, which also authorizes placement of that bottleneck on the Mississippi.

Lock and Dam 26 at Alton, Ill. But the issue of waterway fees is more than one of fairness to all parties.

It's inseparable from the two greatest problems facing this nation, energy and inflation: 1. Water transportation is one of the most fuel-efficient ways to move large cargoes, and such a deserves to be encouraged — not penalized — by the government.

Those "substantial" fees the President wants are to pass along to producers, including farmers and steelmakers, who ship by water and eventually to the consumer.

The House-passed bill seems far superior to what the administration and Domenici want.

It ends the water users' free ride—it acknowledges that there's not enough information to justify cost recovery.

It requires review of the fees' broad effects; and it doesn't muddy the critical issues of the substantial fees would.

The nation cannot afford the narrow view, because everyone will pay for a fee on waterway users.

Illinois Education Office under attack

Edwardsville Intelligencer — The Illinois Education Office, a fat, expensive bureaucracy wasting taxpayers' dollars.

That's what opponents of the appointive system want Illinoisans to believe.

They say an elected superintendent would run a more efficient operation.

It is one of their main arguments for supporting a constitutional amendment to return the office of state superintendent of education to the electorate.

It's a faulty argument.

Start with the constant lament of Education Office opponents that the appointive system has generated an overabundance of paperwork for local school districts.

The fact is the office has reduced the number of forms local districts file. And that reduction continues without loss of information needed to coordinate education.

Since 1974, the year the office began its war against paperwork, 282 forms required by the state have been eliminated; 50 of others have been reduced in size.

That has taken place at a time when the number of forms required by the federal government has increased.

The reduction in paperwork, in the long run, means administrative and staff time saved both at the local and state levels. That translates into dollars saved on administrative salaries that can be used in the classrooms.

The Office of Education also has a dirty little secret: the number of employees under the elected superintendent.

In February 1973, the year of the elected superintendent, 1,008 persons worked in the office. In February, 846 persons were employed in the appointed superintendent's office.

Opponents of the appointive superintendent also complain that the office itself is too expensive.

The office budget has gone up considerably. It was $12.7 million in 1974. It is now $13.7 million.

That appears to be a large increase. But when inflation is considered, it works out to a decrease in real dollars.

Inflation since 1974, using the Consumer Price Index, has been 29.6 percent. The Office of Education budget has gone up only 6.9 percent.

None of that is to say that the Illinois Office of Education does not have some waste. Most bureaucracies do.

And the office should constantly be encouraged to reduce those wastes.

But the record indicates that the elective system is not more efficient than the appointive system.

And that is the one basis on which any intelligent decision regarding the future administration of Illinois schools should be made.

New hyperactivity understanding

American Association for the Advancement of Science

Hyperactivity, the condition that makes some children, usually boys, uncontrollably restless and aggressive, has been treated for years with stimulant drugs, including amphetamines.

Lately, researchers have begun to question accepted theories about the nature and treatment of the "minimal brain dysfunction" that produces the symptoms of hyperactivity.

An article by Gina Bari Kolata in "Science," the weekly journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, reviews studies which indicate that "stimulant drugs may not, by themselves, be an appropriate treatment for hyperactive children."

Widely used since the 1960s, amphetamines are still the most commonly prescribed treatment for hyperactivity.

The drugs are supposed to allow hyperactive students, for example, to sit still in the classroom. And the assumption long has been that the drugs' academic and performance improves with the ability to control his movements.

In 1975, however, a research team at Montreal Children's Hospital, led by Gabrielle Weiss, published a report that showed many of their colleagues.

In a study of hyperactive children, investigators found that children treated with stimulant drugs showed no significant improvement in intelligence quotient, visual-motor coordination, academic performance, or emotional adjustment or delinquency over children who had received no medication.

Other researchers from the University of Illinois, Robert Sprague and Esther Sletator, have offered an explanation for this disappointing phenomenon.

Hyperactive children, say Sprague and Sletator, may be inhibited by the drugs, rather than facilitate, a child's ability to learn. A common explanation is that the drugs are supposed to allow hyperactive students, for example, to sit still in the classroom. And the assumption long has been that the drugs' academic and performance improves with the

While the recent research studies suggest that high doses of drugs may impede learning, scientists believe that they also will increase a child's heart rate and blood pressure, a situation that could prove harmful if drugs are taken for many years.

The ideal course of treatment for hyperactive children, many scientists say, should include drugs, given for only short periods of time, along with behavior modification, counseling, and changes in school curricula.

The expense of special education and counseling, however, makes drug treatment along the mainstream of treating hyperactive children.

Prevention of the disability is one course that offers hope, but scientists must understand what causes hyperactivity before they can learn to prevent it.

The first step in the search for understanding is to pinpoint the difference between hyperactive and "normal" children, and this is proving to be difficult.

Electroencephalograms — measurement of brain waves — offer no help, nor do neurological examinations.

Currently, hyperactive children simply are identified by their inability to control their movements in an environment where control is required, such as the classroom.

Other researchers believe that hyperactive children can be identified by their response to stimulant drugs, called a "paradoxical" response, since the drugs have a calming effect opposite to the expected effect of stimulant substances.

But a test by Judith Rapoport and Monte Buchsbaum at the National Institutes of Mental Health (NIMH), whose results also are published in Science, gives strong evidence that non-hyperactive children react to stimulant medication in the same way that hyperactive children do.

Eliminating the "paradoxical" response as a clue to the cause of hyperactivity.

Third article in Science reveals that hyperactive children may have some specific biological characteristics that point to congenital causes for the condition.

Researcher Mary Waldrop and her team at NIMH report that hyperactive three-year-old boys have significantly more minor physical abnormalities, such as malformed or asymmetrical ears, curved fifth fingers, and wide gaps between the first and second toes. Other scientists have found that children in hyperactivity clinics tend to have an unusual number of birth characteristics.

In addition, fathers of hyperactive children who themselves were hyperactive have the same kinds of minor abnormalities. The theory is that the abnormalities occur during the first weeks of pregnancy — and that whatever causes them also could lead to abnormalities in the development of the central nervous system and, possibly, to hyperactivity.

"If the causes of hyperactivity are indeed congenital," says Kolata, "it is not clear how the disorder may be prevented."

In light of rapid advances being made in the screening and prevention of genetic diseases and disabilities, however, the confirmation of congenital causes may prove to be an important first step in understanding, and finally preventing, hyperactivity in children.

Escorted down the white carpeted aisle and given in marriage by her father, the former Miss Favier, wore a full length white sate gown designed with a fitted bodice featuring a sheer yoke embroidered with silk flowers and outlined with Venice lace motifs, and a high neckline.

The long full sleeves were accented with lace appliques and gathered at the wrists with deep lace cuffs. Matching lace defined the high rise waistline and enhanced the long skirt created with alternate bands of Cluny and Venice lace, which extended into a chapel train.

A cap of lace and pearls secured her long illusion veil bordered with lace motifs. She held a cascade of white roses, daisies, carnations and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Miss Nancy Sheibel and bridesmaids included Miss Cheryl Goodrich and Mrs. Mary Taton, sisters of the groom, Mrs. Annette Pulaski, the bride's sister, and Mrs. Donna Goodrich.

They also wore a halo of baby's breath in their hair.

Tina Goodrich, a niece of the groom, was the flower girl. She wore a white lace over blue bouffant frock made with a high neckline and short sleeves. A blue ribbon encircled the waist and tied in the back with a bow.

She carried a basket of blue and white blossoms.

Serving as ringbearer was Craig Taton, a nephew of the groom.

The groom chose Peter Babic Jr., as best man. Jeff Jones, Joe Taton, Jeff Pulaski, John Goodrich, a brother of the groom, Phillip Gruber and David Goodrich, completed the corps of groomsmen and ushers.

A reception was held at the Moose Hall and the rehearsal dinner was served at Charlie's Restaurant, hosted by the groom's parents.

The newlywed couple will reside in St. Louis following a wedding trip to Tan-Tara Resort.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Favier selected a long pale blue chiffon gown created with a full skirt and long sleeves. The round neckline was traced with blue lace motifs.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Goodrich, was attired in a formal length apricot Qiana dress and a coat ensemble. A rhinestone trim accented the sheer yoke of the gown and was repeated on the softly flowing long sleeves of the coat.

Both mothers wore white Sweetheart rose corsages.

A South High School graduate, the bride is currently employed in the admitting office at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

The groom graduated from North High School and is attending North County Technical School. He also is working for Elhardt Tool and Machine Co., St. Louis.

Venice electors ok higher budget

Budgets totaling $218,021 for township purposes were approved by Venice Township electors during the annual town meeting held in the Venice City Hall Tuesday afternoon.

The new total budget is an increase of $12,994 over the 1977-78 budget of $205,027. Some minor changes were made at the Tuesday meeting from the budget originally presented.

The town fund remained at $112,071, while the municipal retirement appropriation was increased from $29,000 to $30,500. The contingencies fund was reduced by $500 from $1,500 to $1,000.

The township road and bridge budget was reduced by $1,550 from the proposed $38,045 to $36,495. The fund of oiling of roads was decreased from $11,295 to $9,695, and that extrication of weeds was increased from $300 to $350.

Trustee Gary Novich voted no and Trustees Earl Mosley, Benjamin Honorable, Richard Paterson and Supervisor Christ Pashoff voted yes to rehire Nick D. Vasileff as township attorney.

Prior to the vote, Novich made a motion that the attorney be hired only on a 30-day rather than a yearly basis. The motion died for lack of a second.

Vasileff, who was elected moderator for the meeting, said, "Mr. Novich, perhaps you would like to suggest someone else to the board?"

Novich said, "Not at this time."

Novich called for the motion to be read again as he alleged he did not understand it. Vasileff then said, "Clerk, call a roll call vote again. The trustees may vote for or against or abstain."

There was no change on the second vote and Vasileff was rehired as attorney for $3,900 a year.

Novich, in commenting on his no vote, said, "I have been a trustee going on 13 months now and I have yet to see Mr. Vasileff show up at a meeting and I don't think he justifies his salary."

Vasileff, during a brief recess said to Novich, "Gary, if there is anything relative to my job or functions of a township attorney you do not understand, I would be happy to meet with you. Just give me a call at my office."

Vasileff further noted that his is at the disposal of the township at anytime. "If the supervisor would like me to be at any meeting needing my services, I would be glad to be there," he said.

Tax levies of $68,450 for general assistance, and $15,550 for the municipal retirement fund, were approved.

Salary of the supervisor was set at $12,040 a year and for trustees at $50 per meeting, plus $25 per meeting for the clerk.

Other action taken by the trustees provided that money for Venice Township is to be kept in the First National Bank in Madison, that the regular meeting will be on the fourth Wednesday of each month and that the fiscal year will be from March 25, 1978, until March 25, 1979.

Novich suggested the board consider moving the annual town meeting to an evening session to allow greater attendance of citizens.

Mosley commented, "We have had had several meetings at night and no one ever shows up."

Pashoff said, "We have been holding this meeting for 30 years in the afternoon, but if the board wants to change we can consider it at a later time."

Standardize ethnic and race definitions

A standard set of racial-ethnic categories is now being used to enforce non-discrimination and affirmative action requirements on federal contract and subcontract work.

Weldon J. Rougeau, director of the Labor Department's Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs (OFCCP), said OFCCP adopted the standards, which were developed by the Office of Management and Budget, in order to maintain consistency among federal agencies.

Under Executive Order 11246, which OFCCP administers, most general contractors and subcontractors are prohibited from employment discrimination in the basis of race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

These employers are also required to take affirmative action, or positive steps, to hire and promote minorities and women.

At present, day-to-day enforcement of the executive order is carried out by 11 other federal agencies which have been delegated contract compliance responsibilities.

Effective Oct. 1, 1978—the start of fiscal 1979—OFCCP will assume all enforcement responsibility for the contract compliance program.

In the meantime, in a memorandum to the heads of the current compliance agencies, Rougeau stated, "The following racial-ethnic designations do not denote scientific definitions of anthropological origins. An employee may be included in the group to which he or she appears to belong. Identifies with, or is regarded in the community as belonging. However, no person should be counted in more than one racial-ethnic group."

Following are the standard categories used by OFCCP:

American Indian or Alaskan native—A person having origins in any of the original peoples of North America, and who maintains cultural identification through tribal affiliation or community recognition.

Asian or Pacific Islander—A person having origins in any of the original peoples of the Far East, Southeast Asia, the Indian subcontinent or the Pacific Islands. This area includes, for example, China, Japan, Korea, the Philippine Islands and Samoa. The Indian Subcontinent takes in the countries of India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, Nepal, Sikkim and Bhutan.

Black, not of Hispanic origin—A person having origins in any of the black racial groups of Africa.

Hispanic—A person of Mexican, Puerto Rican, Cuban, Central or South American, or other Spanish culture or origin, regardless of race. Only those persons from Central and South American countries who are of Spanish origin, descent or culture are to be included in this category.

Persons from Brazil, Guyana, Surinam or Trinidad, for example, would be classified according to their race and would not necessarily be included in the Hispanic category. In addition, the category does not include persons from Portugal, who should be classified according to race.

White, not of Hispanic origin—A person having origins in any of the original peoples of Europe, North Africa or the Middle East.

The definitions of racial-ethnic categories are to be used by employers when preparing federally-required EEO reports.

They are not intended to preclude any complaints of individual or systemic employment discrimination on the basis of race, color or national origin. OFCCP is a part of the Labor Department's Employment Standards Administration.

GRAIN TRANSFER from the large concrete hopper at lower left to waiting barges in the Chain of Rocks canal is handled by an 800-foot conveyor system which will carry the grain over the east levee of the canal. The grain facility is being built by the Illinois Capital Development Board and will be given to the port authority to be leased. The conveyor system will have an operational capacity of 750 tons per hour and will handle grain products including soda ash, soybean pellets and sugar beet pellets.

Hail plentiful, ice scarce century ago

(Illinois State Historical Society)

April 1878 was a dull month for Illinoisans until, on the twenty-first, Easter brought release from Lenten restrictions and ushered in damaging wind, rain and hail storms.

The lack of social or other activities during Lent was explained by the Chicago Inter-Ocean: "A stranger sojourning in Chicago might think, with some cause, that its society was composed entirely of Episcopalians or Catholics, or that the other religious denominations were so few in numbers or independence that they could indulge in no festivities whatever without the sanction or assistance of the sects who are bound to observe the solemn season of Lent."

Easter morning in Chicago was "clear, bright, inviting," and churches were profusely decorated with "calyxes of white and red roses, violets, heliotrope, carnation, pinks and smilax."

Most churches held at least three services, two in the morning and a children's program in the afternoon.

All had overflow crowds that began to assemble an hour before the doors were opened.

One church provided benches along the walls. And at another, the "obliging ushers" borrowed chairs from homes in the neighborhood.

In Springfield, the Daily State Journal reported, "Easter day was probably more generally observed than ever before."

The Easter storms began in Iowa and did not reach Illinois until late in the day.

At Coal Valley, three bridges of the Rock Island and Peoria Railroad were washed away. At Galesburg, "nearly 300 panes of glass were broken at Lombard University."

At Morris, "the heavy winds blew down a number fruit trees and outshouses."

At LaSalle, "a large ice-house was demolished" and in Mendota "the ground is covered with beautiful white blossoms from the cherry, plum and apple trees. It is feared that the crop prospects are considerably lessened."

The hailstones were described at Wenona as "averaging as large as hickory nuts," and in LaSalle County they measured "two and a quarter inches long."

At Galesburg, a horse was killed by the "large hailstones" and two men "were bruised terribly before they could find shelter."

The operators and workers at the Rock Island and Moline sawmills were happy, however, because the heavy rains reached up into Wisconsin and the logs that had been cut in the winter could now be floated down to them.

The winter had been so mild that the supply of ice cut and stored for summer use was about 40 percent of the usual amount.

A reporter for The Cairo Bulletin went on an "interviewing expedition" to the "wholesale ice dealers of the city" and found that several had gone out of business, others had moved their operations, and still others were traveling to Wisconsin in search of supplies.

One prediction was that the wholesale price might reach $50 a ton, as it had done in 1863, the last time there was a severe shortage.

During the week after Easter there was a flood of weddings, parties, receptions, "dances, banquets," and other celebrations in Chicago.

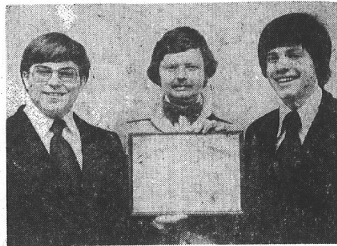

The baseball season was launched the day before Easter by the White Stockings and a "picked nine composed of good players" at the "new grounds, Randolph Street and the lake front." The Whites won 14-1.

On the same day, the Northwestern University team played a "pickup nine" to a 6-4 draw in 11 innings.

Another April event was a "neck tie party" at Ullin (Alexander County), but it was not a lynching as dictionaries define the term. The Cairo Bulletin reported, "All the ladies present had on calico aprons, each one of different make and trimmings, and with each apron there was a gentleman's neck tie to correspond."

"The neck ties were placed in envelopes and each gentleman by paying 25 cents was entitled to supper for himself and lady and the privilege of drawing, and the lady having on the apron to correspond with the tie was the gentleman's partner."

Foster homes are needed for teens

By ORRIN CHILDERS

Resource

Granite City Field Office

and Family Services

Dozens of wayward teenagers in this area face loneliness, rejection and anger unless they can find a living situation that will help salvage their lives.

These are real-life stories about the critical need for foster homes for teenagers:

John, a handsome 17-year-old, had plans of joining the armed service but has been involved in several motorcycle thefts which stigmatized him as "delinquent."

Anne, 14 years old, was adopted at birth and then rejected by her adoptive parents when she began her adolescent years. She doesn't smile anymore.

Timmy, 12 years old, is a heavy-set boy who makes desperate attempts to gain attention by being chronically "ill."

Amy, age 17, has a two-year old daughter whom she feels needs a "better" mother than she. Amy now is running away from herself by using drugs.

These area youths face individual problems, but share a common need—they're looking for a home.

The Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, who has custody of these and other teenagers, is trying to locate area people who are willing to give part of themselves to these kids.

Ideally, we are looking for people in their late 20s, 30s and 40s who have the time, patience and concern to involve themselves with an adolescent.

Foster parents can be married or single people who have an extra bed space and can tolerate the minimal extra expense of an additional person in the home.

The agency does provide monthly boarding payments, and medical and dental coverage. It pays for tuition and school fees, as well as providing a professional staff which maintains close contact with the child and family.

In Anne's situation, there's a need for a person who has the tolerance to withstand her attempts to push everyone away from her. Anne has been in and out of four foster homes in one year, each rejection further proving to her that she is unlovable, unwanted and "bad."

She now acts out these feelings by running away, lying, and passively controlling all those who try to care about her.

Timmy develops daily headaches, backaches and stomach aches, all physically unfounded and all aimed at getting people to notice him and to show concern. He needs foster parents who are consistent and who have the time to work with him on his daily activity list.

These teenagers need a friend to help them work through their problems. It's not an easy task. Sometimes, many tears and hours of worry are spent in frustration, caring about a child who feels unloved.

Anyone interested in the future of these teenagers may contact:

Also in attendance from the local area were Mrs. Margaret Burnett, Granite City, of the Wilson campaign staff; Mrs. Betsy Smith, Beloit, campaign manager for Gerald Cohn for circuit judge; Robert Bibb, Troy, candidate for sheriff; Daniel J. Stack, Collinsville, congressional candidate in the 23rd District, and his wife, Del, and staff members, Phil Stack and Tom Hoover.

Over 150 candidates and staff members throughout Illinois were in attendance.

Urge 'new approach' to state's arts programs

Illinois Arts Council Chairman Bill DuVall and Executive Director Clark Mize attended a meeting at Belleville Area College to explain what the council does and to solicit the opinions of area fine arts practitioners as to how they could do their job more effectively.

The Illinois Arts Council presently operates on a $1.3 million budget appropriated by the legislature. Governor James Thompson has requested $2.1 million for the council for the coming year.

According to Chairman DuVall, the council primarily is funding new approaches to programs rather than a variety of new programs since, he said, "New programs tend to require substantial new funding and there is a shortage of funding."

The council will make the decision concerning projects to be funded next year in July. DuVall pointed out that all applications for funding are referred to advisory panels. A multiplicity of panels, each made up of experts who volunteer their time, recommends projects to be funded. DuVall said that the panels' recommendations are usually followed by the council.

DuVall stated, "We have not done as good a job as we should have in communicating what we have and how to go about applying for grants."

He indicated that he expects a fairly stable four-year period that will give the council an opportunity to look at what is being done and to decide whether it could be done better.

Two-thirds of council members are new, he said, and have a four-year term which will provide a period of stability for the organization.

Questioned as to the apparent preference for professional acting groups one person had observed, DuVall pointed out that many of these groups receive partial funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities which will not fund amateur theatrical groups.

Another member of the audience questioned what she considered to be unequal funding for Chicago and the rest of the state. DuVall said that grants are apportioned by the council almost precisely as to population throughout Illinois.

He stated that the council cannot replace, and does not intend to try to replace, fine arts programs in the public schools of the state.

"The elimination of arts programs in the schools is a serious and growing problem," he said, "but that is a local decision made by school boards elected by citizens. There is not enough money in the council to make a dent in the arts programs that are being done away with in schools."

"If people are willing to accept these decisions (by the school boards) it is up to them. They have the power to change it."

DuVall called the elimination of arts programs in the state's public schools a "tragic situation."

He insisted that he opposes the Illinois Arts Council ever being affiliated with the Illinois Department of Education. He said that the council could promote the excellence of art effectively only as an independent body.

Koelling of the Centralia Cultural Society who advocated the forming of local arts councils. Koelling said that advocates of the arts had three primary goals; to increase appreciation for the arts; to drum up support of citizens for the arts; and to lobby with the legislature for support for the arts.

Also present was Peter Simpson who has served as an advisory panel member for four years. He discussed the difficulty panel members experience when they determine what projects are to be funded.

"It is something like playing Solomon and having to divide children," Simpson said that projects that seem to get the most funding are those that look as if they can sustain themselves once they are off the ground.

In his four years' experience, Simpson said, the basic guideline in judging each project is its own merit.

Hearing set for rent subsidy aide

The board of directors of the Madison County Housing Authority has set a dismissal hearing for May 4 for the director of the authority's Section 8 rent subsidy program, Mrs. Nancy May Reeves of Collinsville.

Officials took records of the rent program April 5 from the authority's offices in Collinsville.

The records were obtained by the authority's attorney, Casper Nighoghossian, and two policemen of the Collinsville police department. The police secured the records and took them to the evidence room of the department.

Nighoghossian said that he "did not act in the capacity of assistant state's attorney, but only as the authority's attorney." He also commented that "the state's attorney office has not and is not investigating the program."

Reality shock' nurse workshop

The Continuing Education Program of the SIUE School of Nursing will offer a workshop on reality shock April 26, according to Betty Boyd Walker, director (292-3956).

Co-sponsored with the Southern Illinois Society for Health, Manpower, Education and Training, the workshop will explore the concept and dynamics of reality shock.

The one-day workshop will be held at Buckley's Ramada Inn in Fairview Heights from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Instructor will be Marlene Kramer, professor of nursing at the University of California.

Registration will be $18, which includes lunch and coffee breaks. Deadline for registration is April 19. Nurses attending the sessions will earn five contact hours.

Participants will learn to recognize signs and symptoms of the various phases of reality shock and explore factors leading to the development of bicurricularism.

Upon completion of the workshop, nurses will be able to identify similarities and differences in nursing subcultural values, and possible strategies and lines of action useful in productive conflict resolution.

7 million cyclists—safety adds to fun

By MARY RICHARDS
Illinois Department of Public Health

There are more than seven million motorized two-wheelers in the United States. And, now that the snow and ice of winter are gone, those millions of cyclists will be getting out onto the streets and highways.

More and more people every day are discovering the fun of motorcycling.

The Illinois Department of Public Health has some suggestions for motorcyclists that will help add to their enjoyment by decreasing the risk of accident.

Since about 90 percent of all cycle accidents involve collisions with autos, cyclists must be better drivers than are automobile drivers.

The first step toward becoming a better driver is to study up. Study your owner's manual — learn how to operate the controls by touch — obtain proper instruction before you attempt to drive — practice off street or on low traffic streets — and know your machine's limits (a small, lightweight can't compete with freeway traffic, and shouldn't try to).

Proper clothing for cycling adds to both enjoyment and safety.

An approved safety helmet ("skid lid") is a must. It will help prevent serious head injury in case of accident. It helps make you more conspicuous in traffic.

Goggles or face shields are also important. They reduce glare and protect the eyes from dirt, wind and insects.

In fact, eye protection for cyclists is required by law in Illinois.

Boots or sturdy shoes help prevent foot injuries. It has been found that riding in shorts with no shoes and no shirt can result in serious injury.

All riding clothes should be light in color to make you more visible; and it's a good idea to apply strips of reflective tape to your helmet, jacket and gloves.

Illinois law also requires that motorcycle headlights and taillights be turned on whenever the vehicle is being ridden.

When you're ready to "hit the road," start thinking safety before you start up. Drive defensively — be prepared for the unexpected.

The double braking system of a two-wheeler, plus the fact that you can operate brakes and throttle at the same time, are major safety features — if you have the know-how.

But always remember to add "think distance" to your braking distance.

For example, if you are traveling 50 miles per hour, once you decide to stop you will travel 50 feet before you apply the brake, and another 125 feet before you stop — 175 feet between the decision and the actual stop.

You'll also be safer if you use your gears properly. Smooth shifting is the mark of an expert driver and results in better control, improved performance and less engine wear.

You should avoid "riding" the clutch, and should downshift to help you slow down.

When you're on the road, allow yourself room to maneuver — never drive into a space you can't see your way out of. Don't travel too close to parked cars. Pass other vehicles with caution.

When you're on the road, allow yourself room to maneuver — never drive into a space you can't see your way out of. Don't travel too close to parked cars. Pass other vehicles with caution.

The state health department says that, if you remember six common-sense rules for safe cycling, your chances of accident will be less:

1. Don't show off.
2. Pass with caution.
3. Don't insist on your right-of-way.
4. Concentrate on the road.
5. Never "tailgate" other vehicles; and
6. Remember that automobile drivers don't always see motorcycles even when your lights are on.

Fall start for new law school building

St. Louis University will begin construction this fall on a new multi-million-dollar law school building at 3700 Lindell Blvd., it was announced during the weekend by University President Edward J. Drummond, S.J. Groundbreaking ceremonies are scheduled for Aug. 31.

Cost of the four-story brick and concrete building, to be integrated with the existing Omer Pooe Law Library, will be approximately $3,150,000. Funds to pay for the new facility are being sought from the school's alumni and from friends and foundations.

Pledges and donations in the School of Law campaign already exceed $1,250,000, according to campaign co-chairmen Richard Dodge and John C. Shepherd.

"We need the full support of St. Louis University alumni and friends to make the School of Law Campaign a success. And it appears that we've got it.

"Current donations and pledges from law school alumni are generous and we expect their support to continue. We are planning to move into a new law building by late fall of 1979," Dodge said.

Speaking at the School of Law's annual Law Day dinner in the Breckinridge Pavilion Hotel, Father Drummond confirmed Dodge's statement that the university trustees have made a firm commitment to build the new law building.

"The facilities which were highly satisfactory in 1912 for an enrollment of about 190 students can no longer begin to approach the level of need for today's enrollment of 567."

"Classes have been scattered in seven different university buildings for several years. We know we need a new School of Law facility. We are taking the action now to build one," he said.

According to John F. T. Murray, St. Louis University School of Law dean, the new facility is a must for the school's continued academic excellence.

"The School of Law has a solid academic reputation," Murray said.

"But the foundation of our program is the new physical plant. Without it, none of our expectations or plans can be realized."

"The facility that in 1912 epitomized modernity is now obsolete. Our need is for a facility to match our faculty. What we need is a facility in which our students can adequately prepare for the practice of law."

The present school of law is at 3642 Lindell. In 1912 it was considered the epitome of modern law schools, featuring a courtroom, an extensive library, reading rooms and an auditorium.

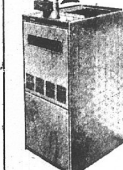

The new building will create a School of Law complex at Spring Avenue and Lindell Boulevard.

Designed by Sverdrup & Parcel and Associates, Inc., it will house classrooms, a large courtroom, and administrative, faculty and student organizational offices.

The new building also will significantly enlarge the existing library, which presently houses more than 165,000 volumes.

Enterprise competition

Students from 12 colleges and universities in Missouri and Illinois will present their own unique free enterprise projects for judging Friday at the Breckinridge Pavilion Hotel in St. Louis.

The "Students in Free Enterprise" competition is sponsored by Ralston Purina Co. The program is under the direction of the National Leadership Methods organization of Austin, Tex.

The competition is based on which college can develop the most innovative, creative, imaginative and effective program for projecting the positive side of the free enterprise system on the college campus and in the community.

Last September, teams from colleges in Missouri and Illinois gathered for a briefing on the competition. Since then, the teams of business students have been developing their own programs. The competition promises to fruition tomorrow with the judging and awarding of cash prizes.

The 12 schools competing include Illinois College of Jacksonville.

The first-place prize is $1,750, second place is $750 and third place is $500. All teams will receive commemorative plaques for taking part in the program.

R. Hal Dean, chairman of the board of Ralston Purina, said, "We feel this college- and community-oriented program is an excellent way to improve everyone's understanding and appreciation of the free enterprise system. We're looking forward to seeing and hearing about the projects these young people have put together."

GENEROUS CUSTOMERS

Lower air fares, Waterloo growth add to urgency of a new airport

Talk by Arven H. Saunders, executive director, St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airports Authority, to Granite City and Madison-Venice Rotarians on Tuesday.

In preparing my remarks, I had only one guideline, and that guideline was to give a realistic picture of where we are in the long struggle to build the new St. Louis airport in Illinois.

We face serious challenges. There is no room for overconfidence. By the same token, there is no reason for gloom or despair.

The facts have not changed. The merits of the Columbia-Waterloo site remain intact. Its superiority remains unchallenged.

Determined optimism continues to be my own outlook. We have suffered a political setback — and I use the word "political" accurately and thoughtfully, as it may be.

Nonetheless, the Columbia-Waterloo airport is in good health. The prognosis is excellent.

Those who know how important the airport is to the region's future are continuing to press forward and they are growing in numbers each day.

In keeping with realistic approach, it is important to put in perspective a move last December which brought great comfort to the "Lambert forever" proponents.

That move was the action by the Secretary of Transportation's office removing St. Louis from a list of cities eligible for immediate federal funding for new airports.

But just remember that the secretary can revise this list at any time, restoring St. Louis as quickly as he removed it.

Thus, the central issue remains Secretary Brock Adams' decision last March to suspend our application for further funding for land acquisition — and here I quote the secretary's own words — "at this time."

In the March 1977 decision, Secretary Adams warned of problems that could overwhelm Lambert — and now, a year later, those problems are coming much faster than the secretary had envisioned.

In fact, they are coming so rapidly that U.S. Senator Thomas Eagleton already has discussed with Governor Sweeney the possibility of looking for an airport site in Missouri — a discussion that the governor reported at one of his town meetings in St. Louis county last November.

During the same period, Lambert has discarded the improvement plans developed by the Parsons Company at a cost to Missouri and federal taxpayers of $500,000.

In place of the Parsons plan, Lambert has fallen back to a series of projects that, in their principal elements, were set forth in a plan approved by the Federal Aviation Administration back in 1970.

What this means is that Lambert is being prepared for the 1980s from plans that were devised in the 1960s.

And believe me, this is not because the plans were so far-seeing at that time or that they are what Lambert needs to serve a rapidly growing air transportation industry in the 1980s and beyond.

On the contrary, the projects in the Parsons plan, of all capacity gains that can be squeezed into the Lambert site.

We favor the airfield components of these projects and the related improvements that are essential to safety and capacity.

We proposed these same improvements at Lambert to Secretary of Transportation Coleman in 1976. This is a matter of public record.

While Lambert was falling back to some make-do projects and the search for a Missouri site was being revived, Illinois has not been asleep.

Governor Thompson in late December reaffirmed his dedication to Columbia-Waterloo.

He has no question about where he stands, or about his determination to make sure that Illinois is a responsible regional partner with the federal government in developing the Columbia-Waterloo airport as an essential regional and national asset.

Other state and local officials have also reaffirmed their determination to make the new airport a reality.

On a cold Saturday morning in early January, 67 government, labor and business leaders of Southwestern Illinois signed a strong resolution and planned further action.

Subsequently, they have taken additional steps, including a trip to Washington to meet with the Illinois Congressional delegation.

It would be improper to single out a few names from those many dedicated leaders, except to point out that U.S. Senator Governor Dave O'Neal, Secretary of State Alan Dixon, Senator Kenneth Hall and Representative Monroe Fliem and Celeste Stiehl from this area were among them.

We, the Vice Chairman and State Senator Jim Donnewald in organizing the meeting and the trip to Washington was a big key to the success of these efforts.

My appointment to the added responsibilities of director of transportation for the state of Illinois is in keeping with the governor's commitment to Columbia-Waterloo.

Don Adams asked me to tell you a little about my work in Springfield and throughout the state, and this might be a good place to do that.

The Division of Aeronautics, part of the Illinois Department of Transportation, is responsible for about 70 people who regulate intra-state air carriers, conduct safety inspections and seminars, register 8,000 airplanes based in Illinois, and provide air transportation services to the governor and other state officials with five airplanes and four helicopters, as well as operate seven other airplanes.

We administer and engineer dozens of airport construction and improvement projects throughout the state, and coordinate Civil Air Patrol and aviation education affairs.

Illinois continues to lead the United States in airport safety.

Our system is second largest in the country, with 146 public use airports, including O'Hare, the busiest in the world, and more than 300 private air strips.

Illinois ranks first in the number of certified hospital helicopters.

Aeronautics provides emergency transportation for trauma patients, moving more than 400 a year.

Last year, Illinois ranked first in federal airport development funds received in the six-state Great Lakes region of the Federal Aviation Administration.

But beyond this, Aeronautics' interest will be broadened in accordance with Governor Thompson's policies.

We are actively involved in the Midway low fare service case.

The governor himself testified at the hearing.

We are also involved in a new low fare case for Peoria and the Moline area, serving Atlanta and other Southeastern cities. We are vitally interested in better air services at Rockford.

Two weeks ago, the Illinois Aeronautics Board, of which I serve as chairman, authorized a permanent certificate to Rayon Airlines, a new company, for service to Rockford, Chicago-Meigs, Peoria and Springfield.

We intend to encourage other commuter airline services in the state.

We are also assisting privately-owned airports to the best of our ability, especially key reliever ones like Palwaukee, Chicago-Land, Elgin and Crystal Lake, which help unload O'Hare.

But going back to the new airport for St. Louis at Columbia-Waterloo, a whole series of pressures makes it essential to move now to get the federal funding freeze lifted.

Secretary Adams last March said that the Columbia-Waterloo site would be available indefinitely. Events are proving that it will not.

With work moving forward on Interstate 270 and the new Jefferson Barracks bridge, the buildup in the area will accelerate.

Several farms within the site have recently been sold for subdivisions. Plans continue for a new town nearby, closer than we would prefer, but outside the noise zone.

Nor should the build-up in the area be of any surprise in Washington.

In a little-noticed report to Congress last August, Secretary Adams himself urged landings of airport sites, because local zoning and other regulations were proving to be an ineffective barrier.

Less than a year after he issued that statement, we see that there will be no major improvements at Lambert, and that delays are increasing.

We note that residents living near Lambert are filing damage suits because of the intolerable noise.

We learn that Missouri is talking about a new search for a site in Missouri — with no concern for its bi-state regional responsibilities. We observe major upsurges in airline traffic.

Also, the Missouri Highway Department now says it would cost one billion dollars to handle future traffic on Interstate 70, the principal access route to Lambert, thus admitting in reality that such expansion is infeasible.

Further, Missouri engineers now admit the new St. Charles bridge, even when it is completed in 1982, will be saturated with traffic the first day.

In the meantime, low airline fares are sweeping the country and airline traffic is booming. Clearly, regulatory reform is a wave of the future.

As you know, the Civil Aeronautics Board has promised a prerogative decision in this matter by year end. How far this decision will go, we do not know at this time.

We do know that it will mean substantial increases in traffic, as it has already merely in anticipation of changes to come.

Even without formal deregulation, reduced fares are revolutionizing the airline industry. Hardly a day goes by without another special price offer being introduced.

In a recent informal monthly report, Alfred E. Kahn, chairman of the CAB, noted seven new discount fares — in a single report.

Where are the facilities for St. Louis to handle this traffic? We would hate to be in the position of United Airlines, Northwest Airlines or Midway Southwest Airlines or any other carriers which might be coming to St. Louis as a result, for example, of the Midway low fare service case now in progress.

Incidentally, I will be in Washington Thursday to participate in the oral arguments in this case.

I'm afraid at St. Louis a new airline would get a clear "no vacancy," "no-room-at-the-inn" signal.

And how about the poor passenger who finally works his way through the congestion on I-70 and then can't find a place to park?

The recent increase in parking lot rates at Lambert is a clear example of what the economists call using the pricing mechanism to discourage and cut demand.

The garage rate hike is a bitter foretaste of not only inconvenience for travelers as congestion and traffic inevitably increase, but it is also a foretaste of the increasing costs for all travelers in using Lambert's facilities.

Because of site limitations, the Lambert facilities are outmoded overall no matter how new some parts, like the new concourses, may seem to be.

Our authority staff is hard at work keeping on top of these and other developments that almost daily make it more urgent to get going on the development of the airport at Columbia-Waterloo.

Federal approval of the Columbia-Waterloo site and of related environmental impact statement obligates the authority to keep its case always current.

We are continually monitoring all developments in the aviation industry. We are continuously updating our technical studies.

We expect to start work soon on some specific new studies related to passenger access to Lambert as well as to Columbia-Waterloo.

In regard to obligations that result from the continuing federal approval of the Columbia-Waterloo location, there is much that interested citizens and organizations can do.

Letters, phone calls and personal visits with elected officials are important. Letters to the newspapers help. Your courtesy in inviting me here is a significant contribution.

The case for the new airport remains logical and sound, except that the day of crisis moves ever closer.

As the Federal Aviation Administration said on Nov. 17, 1977, "Nothing has changed."

The Columbia-Waterloo site is still a viable project for construction."

Obviously, Columbia-Waterloo's time is at hand. Those who still are determined to thwart it have no responsible alternative.

Those who favor it have an unprecedented opportunity to remove the temporary roadblock put up in haste at the start of a new federal administration.

But make no mistake about it. If both sides of this great two-state region are to prosper in the future — and keep pace with the rest of the country — a new airport is essential.

The Columbia-Waterloo site will remain the site where the action takes place.

Dam project free to speak

Jonathan Ela, Midwest professional staff representative of the Sierra Club, will address the fifth annual dinner of the Platte Palisades Group of the Sierra Club on Saturday, April 22, at 7 p.m. at Rostig's Restaurant, Route 157, Collinsville.

Known as a principal campaigner to "preserve the upper Mississippi and Illinois Rivers from a new and enlarged Lock and Dam 26 at Alton, Ela has vigorously lobbied in Washington and throughout the Midwest against Lock and Dam 26 replacement.

The subject of Ela's address will be "National Legislative and Administrative Goals of the Sierra Club."

Top national legislative issue for the Sierra Club is enactment of H.R. 39-1500 which would give permanent protection to 110 million acres of "national interest" lands in Alaska. The legislation is currently being studied by the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

A top administrative goal of the club is the identification and protection of roadless wilderness areas within the U.S. National Forest system.

In the Shawnee National Forest in Southern Illinois, eight such areas have tentatively been inventoried.

Having both national and regional importance to the Sierra Club is proposed legislation to protect the Boundary Waters Wilderness Canoe Area in northeastern Minnesota, as well as opposition to Lock and Dam 26 at Alton.

Ela says, "The Mississippi and Illinois Rivers represent immense value to the American people."

He contends that "an alliance of the Army Corps of Engineers, the waterways industry, and enthusiastically cooperating politicians would hand the rivers over solely and exclusively to interested commercial priorities."

"This unjust subsidy and environmentally destructive project would be built at the devastating price of sacrificed natural, scenic, wildlife, recreational, and flood prevention priorities and values."

A cum laude graduate of Harvard College, Ela worked as an assistant to the conservation director of the national Sierra Club prior to being named to the club's first Midwest representative.

Before joining the club, Ela served as legislative aid to Senator Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin.

He works out of the Sierra Club's Midwest office in Madison, Wis.

In addition to the Sierra Club responsibilities, he is chairman of the Council for a Sound Waterways Policy, an independent environmental group. He is author of the Sierra Club book "The Faces of the Great Lakes."

Dinner reservations cost $6 and must be made by Friday, April 14. Checks are being sent to L. M. McNulty, 55 Outgate Bluff, Godfrey 62035.

The Platte Palisades Group of the Sierra Club takes in 13 counties of Southwestern Illinois.

Campus Mothers' Day this weekend (April 14-15) at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign will have many more activities than the world's first such event, held there in 1921.

Activities are planned by the university, students and UIUC Mothers Association. University events include engineering honors convocation, departmental honors ceremonies and Armed Forces Broom Day.

Students will pick one mother as "queen mom" to represent all mothers, and will present musical theater productions, fashion show, a dance concert, swimming show, flower and garden show, art exhibit, craft fair and other events.

Certificates of appreciation will be presented to Mrs. Jean McCormick, director, Student Assistance Center, and Stanley W. Rabun, executive director, UIUC Dads Association, for their service to the university and students.

Mothers Association officers for 1978-79 will be elected. The present Mothers Association officers and board chairwoman include, from Madison County:

Mrs. Delores Geiger, Rural Route 1, Albion; Mrs. Evelyn Zumwalt, East Alton; Mrs. Frances Olbrich, Rural Route 7, Edwardsville; and Sells—BETTER LIVING!

Luke 24:49... "And, behold, I send you upon your mission, but ye are to be in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high."

Followers of Christ must not only have faith in God, they must also be people of hope.

By faith, the disciples obeyed the command of Christ and tarried in Jerusalem for that was promised. They believed with a faith that could not, nor would not stagger. They also had hope; a great expectation that did not dim nor diminish. That hope was rewarded on the day of Pentecost, when they were all filled with the Holy Ghost.

This promise of power is to all who have faith. It is received by those who hope.

Hope to receive. Today.

Frost protection for food crops

By CHRIS DOLL

Area Garden Adviser

Early planted tender vegetable plants and early flowering fruit crops can be extremely susceptible to spring frost in April.

Growers should be prepared to protect sensitive plants against damage or take their chances. There is still a 50-50 chance for 32 degrees or below in Southwestern Illinois through April 20.

Vegetable plants such as tomatoes and peppers can be covered with buckets, baskets, cartons, hotcaps, etc. to keep frost from burning the leaves.

There should be an air space between the covering material and the plant, unless it is an insulating material. Plants should be uncovered during the day.

Large plantings of tender crops can be protected by irrigating lightly but continuously during the night. The heat of fusion of water prevents frost damage.

Protection for flowering strawberries is similar to vegetable plants. But brambles, grapes, and trees are more difficult to cover and rarely are except for isolated plant or dwarf specimens.

Use whatever cover is large enough to cover the heat around the tree.

Continuous sprinkling will also work on fruits—even to the point of ice formation—if it is continuous and of long enough duration.

NOTICE

Public notice is hereby given that, on the 4th day of May, 1978, the undersigned, Alyce LaVerne Merz shall file her Petition in the Circuit Court of Madison County, Illinois, sitting in the City of Granite City, and will present a copy of said Petition to the Clerk of said Court.

Sprays and dusts should be equally effective. However, they have more staying power during a rain, withstanding up to two inches of rainfall, whereas dusts will be re-applied after each heavy rain.

By using good materials and making the repeat applications at the right intervals, good insect and disease-free fruit should be grown.

Approve GC town funds for senior citizens

In a meeting that lasted only 20 minutes, approximately 25 electors of Granite City Township approved the annual report of Township Supervisor Nelson Hagnauer and adopted a resolution to provide up to $20,000 in town funds for services to senior citizens during the annual town meeting Tuesday night.

The session was held in the new Town Building, under mandate by state law which sets the annual town meeting on the second Tuesday of each April.

A resolution authorizing the Town Board, which is made up of City Council members, to appoint a certified public accountant to make the annual audit of town funds, also was approved. It was a motion approving the by-laws of the Town Board.

Alderman Gerald Parmley of the Sixth Ward, one of only three Town Board members to attend the meeting, was elected moderator.

In his annual report which showed total township expenditures of $4,379,093 including the cost of building the new Town Hall — Hagnauer said the township's federal revenue sharing account began the 1977-78 fiscal year with an encrow account of balance of $597,779 which was maintained for the building construction project.

Receipts in the revenue sharing account during the year totaled $263,159, giving the township total available funds of $860,938 in that account.

Of this amount, Hagnauer reported, $797,106 was spent for building, furnishing and equipping the new township building. This included payment of $659,062 to the S. M. Wilson & Co. under the contract for construction.

Other new building expenses included $62,140 for the purchase of a tract of land for parking lot, $9,805 in payments to Henry Gabriel as architect for the project and $19,874 for furnishings.

Other township expenses included $287,500 in the town fund, $238,104 in the general assistance fund and $41,143 in the anti-recession fund, the report showed.

Children's book display cancelled

The Children's Book Showcases which was to be placed on display at the Granite City Public Library Monday for one week will not be available and has therefore been cancelled, it was reported.

The showcase had been arranged as a joint project of the public library, the Lewis & Clark Library System, The Illinois State Library and Alan J. Dixon, secretary of state and state librarian.
